ONE VACCINE AGAINST FLU, POLIO POSSIBLE

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Two Tulane University doctors said today their research shows it is possible to make a single vaccine giving protection against colds, flu and polio.

Dr. William J. Mogabgab and Dr. William Pelon made the announcement at a meeting of the southern section of the American Federation for Clinical Research.

The doctors said they isolated a new virus which causes colds. They call it the "2060" virus.

Liberals Ready For Election Now—Pearson

By JOHN MIKA, Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson dropped a hint today that he may have another motion of non-confidence up his sleeve next week and stated that the Liberals are ready for an election at "any time."

At a Vancouver airport press conference, he said, "if the government goes back into supply Monday or Tuesday, there will be another want of confidence motion if the occasion warrants."

Mr. Pearson said he was aware that there was much criticism of his want of confidence amendment last Monday, because it obviously was not designed to force an election.

"I'm sure a lot of people would have been glad to see the excitement of the convention carried through to a motion defeating the government."

WOULD HELP TORIES

"But that would have given the government exactly what they wanted, an escape from the unemployment and trade problems, and an escape from bringing down further legislation, and an escape from the responsibility of bringing on an election."

The new Liberal standard bearer said he was not "in a position the first day I took over to move an amendment which would have resulted in dissolution. So I moved one that could get the solid support of our party, based on our new platform."

"However, that doesn't necessarily mean the tactics of the first day will be repeated."

Mr. Pearson said he personally had no particular preference between an immediate election or one in June or this fall.

Had his amendment won, relief of unemployment conditions would have been the target of Liberal legislation. Also "immediate consideration of the British free trade proposal would have been proposed to meet the need of the hour."

READY ANY TIME

"Well, if they want ballot boxes, they can have dissolution at any time they want. The Liberal party is ready for an election at any time."

Mr. Pearson said he personally had no particular preference between an immediate election or one in June or this fall.

Had his amendment won, relief of unemployment conditions would have been the target of Liberal legislation. Also "immediate consideration of the British free trade proposal would have been proposed to meet the need of the hour."

Calling the British plan the "most exciting trade proposal we've had in recent years," Mr. Pearson scored the Conservatives for their intention to divert 15% of Canada's U.S. trade to Great Britain.

WIRE BRIEFS

France in Race

PARIS (AP)—Roger Baifras, director of France's research centre on thermonuclear fusion, said today temperatures of "about 1,000,000 degrees centigrade" have been reached in the laboratory of Fontenay-aux-Roses near Paris. "Experiments are going on at a fast pace and there is no doubt that France is in a good position in the race for thermonuclear energy," Baifras said.

Mothers Lose Appeal

PEIPING (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-lai notified three American mothers today that he could not consider their appeal for release of their sons from prison terms for espionage.

Late Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP)—A late spurt in demand sent prices to new highs in the general average since last Oct. 15 on active trading on the stock market today.

Phone Hike Deferred

OTTAWA (BUP)—The government has deferred the effective date of freight rate increases granted the Bell Telephone Company of Canada from Jan. 31 to March 1, Prime Minister John Diefenbaker announced today.

Strike Fund Voted

DETROIT (AP)—A special convention of United Auto Workers today approved a $50,000,000 strike fund to back up the union's profit-sharing demands in 1958 bargaining talks.

Early Settings Out

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Howard Green, government House leader, announced today that he has "relented" and will not ask the Commons to sit Monday and Tuesday mornings as originally planned.

Farm Bill Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's farm price stabilization bill today was given approval in principle by the Commons by a vote of 110 to 37. Opposing the bill were the CCF and Social Credit groups and two Liberal members, Walter Tucker, Rosethorn, Sask., and Louis Deniset, St. Boniface, Man.

OFFICIAL REPORTS RELEASED

First Step to H-Power Confirmed by Britain, U.S.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Unusual view of crowded legislative chamber is shown in this picture by Times photographer Bill Halkett. It was taken Thursday as Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross read Speech from Throne opening second session of 25th Legislature. View through main doors shows packed assembly floor, and equally full Speaker's gallery above. Session is expected to last six to eight weeks.

30 Families Flee Up-Island Floods

Flood waters that struck at least six Up-Island communities, and forced the evacuation of 30 families at Alberni, subsided today with the easing of drenching rains of Wednesday night and Thursday.

Roads were flooded in the vicinity of Duncan and Westholme, the Cat Stream at Nanaimo sent flood waters through gardens, and three families were isolated for a few hours at Parksville, when Englishman River overflowed its banks.

But Alberni was the hardest hit of all. Rain that fell "in sheets" Wednesday night and continued unabated Thursday was blamed for floods on Rogers Creek, that washed out the Gertrude Street bridge, and rampaging Kitsukis Creek that forced 30 families in the Margaret Street area to leave their homes.

Also evacuated were 36 trailers in a trailer camp that were hurriedly towed to safety as flood waters rose.

City authorities said streets now are dry, and that the Margaret Street bridge, awash Thursday, is open. Two water lines washed out by the floods are being repaired today.

At the height of the flood RCMP had to evacuate members of one family who had three inches of water over the floors of their home, and attempts were made to open blocked culverts with dynamite.

Cars were stalled, and one man in the stricken area was seen in his yard, standing in water up to his knees, and building a raft.

Neighboring Port Alberni suffered mostly from flooded basements that kept city workers busy with pumps. Nanaimo also suffered from flooded basements and overflowing drains, mainly in the Harewood and Brechin areas.

The rainfall at Vancouver's International Airport in the 24-hour period ended 10 p.m. Thursday was 2.56 inches, heaviest on record for January. The previous mark was 1.38 inches Jan. 6, 1946, the weather office said.

A section of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway track 27 miles north of Vancouver was washed out. Passengers were transported from Squamish to North Vancouver by boat.

A company spokesman said it was hoped to have the track repaired today.

PUBLIC WORKS STATEMENT DUE

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is giving consideration to launching public works to relieve unemployment where it exists, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today in the Commons. An announcement in this regard will be made shortly, he told the House.

Heavy Rainfall Claims Death, Snarls Traffic

VANCOUVER (CP)—Many areas of southwestern B.C. were under water today following a deluge Thursday that in at least one area set a record for a January day.

The downpour was blamed for one death, rockslides that blocked sections of a highway and washed out part of a railway line, and traffic snarls.

Bradley Matthews, 6, was drowned when he fell into the swollen Eagle Creek in Burnaby, near here. He was swept more than a quarter of a mile downstream.

But General Use Many Years Off

(From Times News Dispatches)

Reports claiming "fruitful and promising results" in experiments aimed at harnessing H-bomb reaction to produce industrial electric power were released simultaneously today by the British and U.S. governments.

Both stated flatly, however, that the day of unlimited thermo-nuclear power—if it ever comes—is "many years" distant and made it clear that the hundreds of millions invested in atomic power on both sides of the Atlantic is not in any jeopardy.

A statement from Britain's Atomic Energy Authority confirmed what has been an open secret for months past—that physicists at the Harwell atomic research establishment believe they have been able to make atoms join together and release free energy in a controlled laboratory experiment.

This is the kind of energy process that takes place in the sun and has kept it hot for millions of years. It is also the energy released instantaneously by an H-bomb.

The Harwell team includes Dr. P. C. Thonemann, an Australian, and Dr. W. B. Thompson, a Canadian from Vancouver and Toronto. Working with a strange, doughnut-shaped machine called Zeta—short for zero-energy thermonuclear assembly—they have produced temperatures as high as 5,000,000 degrees centigrade (9,000,000 degrees Fahrenheit).

The Atomic Energy Authority's report said these temperatures are higher than the measured surface temperatures of any star.

Though—as the report pointed out—it will be many years before the new power can be applied to practical use, scientists view the Harwell achievement as something as big—if not bigger—than the Russian Sputnik triumph.

B.C. SCIENTIST AMONG TAMERS OF H-BOMB

He is Dr. William Bell Thompson of Vancouver and Toronto.

Born in Belfast, his family emigrated to Canada when he was an infant. He studied at the universities of British Columbia and Toronto, and then went to the Canadian atomic research establishment at Chalk River, Ont.

Now 35, the six-foot-three mathematician was only 28 when he joined Britain's Harwell team working on thermonuclear reactions.

Scientists view the Harwell achievement as something as big—if not bigger—than the Russian Sputnik triumph.

Trying for Atomic 'Fusion'

The objective in both the American and British work is to get hydrogen atoms to "fuse" or join in sufficient quantities so that sufficient energy is released to generate power.

The process is the opposite of atomic energy released in the fission process in which atoms are split.

If the hydrogen process could be perfected, there would be enough hydrogen in sea water to supply mankind's power requirements for millions of years.

But the problems to be surmounted are twofold:

1. Generating temperatures of 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 for a process that would involve the least accessible kind of hydrogen called "tritium" or a temperature of about 400,000,000 degrees for a more accessible kind called "deuterium."

Both are heavy forms of hydrogen. Ordinary hydrogen can not be used.

2. "Containing" the hydrogen in gaseous form in a vessel in such a way that the highly heated material would not melt the vessel. Also, the temperature would have to be sustained long enough in the initial stages to start a self-sustaining chain reaction.

The progress reported by both countries concerned both these points, but the temperatures attained still are far from the objective, and so is the period of "containment."

Both said—as they have previously—that their experiments suggest that they have actually produced fusion reactions, even though for a limited time and at temperatures lower than would be needed on a practical scale.

And both indicated that if this were so, it would be an enormous step toward the goal of atomic energy.

Fusion Source Of Vast Energy

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

(AP Science Reporter)

Taming the H-bomb could give all nations unlimited power or energy for millions of years.

Today's announcement of British progress on the problem at Harwell makes it plain that commercial use is still years away. But the fact that scientists have unlocked some of the secrets of vast importance to the world of the future.

Here's why:

We are rapidly using up the coal and oil we burn to warm our homes, run our autos and produce electrical energy.

This burning only involves a chemical change. Oxygen combines with carbon and hydrogen in the coal, oil or gasoline. You get hot gases to produce heat and power. Atoms are not destroyed as atoms—they change from solid to gaseous compounds while giving up chemical energy. But the coal and oil are gone as coal and oil.

Really inexhaustible energy is locked up within the hearts or nuclei of atoms and the forces that hold them together. Atom hearts contain the basic material or mass of everything, living or lifeless.

Some of this atomic mass can be transformed into energy. This is what happens in A-bombs or atomic power plants. The nucleus of an atom of uranium-235 or certain other

U.S. Bomber 'Shielded'

Electrons Thwart Missile Attacks

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—An American supersonic bomber now flying can surround itself with a shield of electrons to ward off any attacking missiles.

The automatic defence system being built into Convair's new B-58 Hustler is one of the most spectacular applications of electronics in defence, Don G. Mitchell, president of Sylva Electronics Products, said Thursday night.

"It has flown and it works," Mitchell told reporters.

In essence the shield system generates an electric-magnetic field around the aircraft that fuses up, disrupts and jams the guiding systems of approaching missiles.

Russ Pressed For Reaction On Summit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has prodded Russia on President Eisenhower's plan for lower-level talks as a possible prelude to a summit conference.

The state department said today Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow called on Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko Thursday to inquire about Soviet reaction to Eisenhower's ideas.

Gromyko, in reply to Thompson, said the Soviet government would comment on the proposals "in due course."

Sandbags, Ditches Stop Subsidence

Surface water aggravated the subsidence of Pioneer Square where old mine workings are believed to have collapsed. Sandbags and hurriedly dug ditches diverted water away from the depression, where 40 feet of curb and sidewalk collapsed.

Water gushed into Commercial Street as rushing waters in a drain lifted a manhole cover.

Sandbags were used to keep basements of nearby stores dry. Lakes Road and the Cowichan Bay Road in the Duncan district were flooded and impassable Thursday, but opened today as the waters of Cowichan and Koksilah Rivers returned to normal. No one was inconvenienced, and the Indian homes in the area were safe.

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE
LEGISLATURE

The visitor from Russia might notice little difference between the opening of the mother Parliaments in Westminster and the opening of the B.C. Legislature in Victoria.

The colorful ritual is the same except that in Westminster the Speech from the Throne is read by a radiant young Queen and in Victoria by Her Majesty's representative the Lieutenant-Governor.

But the Russian visitor to Victoria might be puzzled to hear the staid ceremonies interrupted by strange mutterings about a courthouse.

"Kautaus, vat iss a kautaus?" he might ask. And then someone would have to explain that the unimpeachable Liberal members of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition—George Gregory and Archie Gibbs—felt so strongly about the need for a new home for Victoria's lawyers and judges that they had to inject it into the ceremonies.

They did so when Public Works Minister W. N. Chant asked leave to present his departmental report for the year, and again when Premier Bennett, as finance minister, begged permission to present his.

"The courthouse—what about the courthouse?" asked Mr. Gregory in politely modulated tones.

"Yes, what about the courthouse?" murmured Mr. Gibbs—with an offstage obligato by CCF Leader Robert Strachan.

Neither Mr. Chant nor the premier would allow them.

the district are built on stilts and escaped unscathed.

Campbell River, Courtenay, Parksville, and Tofino reported heavy rains, but Estevan Point took Island honors with a recorded 6.44 inches of rain in 48 hours.

Westholme reported flood waters at the corner of Island Highway and Crofton Road for a few hours, but gave credit for removal of gravel from Chemainus River by construction crews early this year for keeping the water level down. It did not rise above 10 inches, and in previous years two feet of water has not been uncommon.

Victoria escaped from the brunt of the storm that wreaked havoc up-island, and will have a few showers tonight and cloudy periods with partial clearing Saturday.

Evidence of the mild weather was given in temperature reports that showed Victoria, with a maximum temperature of 49 degrees Thursday, was the warmest city in Canada.

Calgary and Vancouver were next with 47 degrees, and Victoria's minimum temperature of 46 degrees proved to be higher than the maximums for all the rest of the country.

Highways department crews working on a rock slide that blocked the Parksville-Alberni Highway Thursday at 3 a.m. at Angel Rock, beside Cameron Lake, had two-way traffic restored by late afternoon.

selves to be drawn into a dissection on courthouses (however great the temptation might be). And so, with indulgent grins and paternal shakes of the head, they resumed their seats.

Otherwise the state opening of British Columbia's centennial Legislature passed according to plan. The customary salute of 15 guns, ranged along the waterfront, was fired as Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and his aides arrived at the front steps of the Legislative Buildings.

This year the guard of honor was formed by 100 members of the Canadian Scottish Regiment under Capt. Pat Chaworth-Musters of Duncan and Lieut. Ken Jackson of Victoria, with Lieut. Ian Hogarth as color officer.

The salute was fired by the Fifth Independent Medium Battery, RCA, under the command of Major Douglas Nelson.

In the red-carpeted legislature, former lands and forests minister, Robert Sommers, sat immediately behind Premier Bennett and next to Mrs. Buda Brown, Social Credit member for Point Grey, and former chief justice Gordon Sloan—always a staid enigmatic figure.

Wearing a quiet grey suit and tie, Mr. Sommers followed the proceedings with arms folded on chest, a sad look in his eyes. In the corridors, afterwards, he greeted old friends with a hearty handshake but said little.

Premier Bennett and his cabinet, in black coats and striped pants, formed a solid front on the government side of the House, and the brave show of medals worn by Attorney-General Robert Bonner attracted attention.

In his very formal contributions to the program, the premier spoke more slowly and deliberately than in previous sessions, creating the impression he is anxious to sound more impressive.

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood looked less funereal than during his first (1957) term and on one occasion appeared almost irreverent. That was when the Premier and Opposition Leader Robert Strachan seized Lorne Shantz, according to custom, and "persuaded" him to take on the office of Speaker in succession to Tom Irwin, who resigned after being elected to the federal house last June.

With his quiet modest utterances, Mr. Shantz won the sympathy of everyone in the House, since it was obvious that the shy member from North Okanagan would have a tough road ahead.

But he spoke clearly and in a voice that carried a note of authority. Perhaps, as the session proceeds, he will exert it.

... H-POWER

Important step in the quest. But both said—as they also have said previously—that they are still not sure that this is the case, and that further experiments will be needed to establish this.

The reports stressed that in the fusion field they have not reached a point comparable to the first atomic fission reaction achieved on Dec. 2, 1942, which launched the atomic bomb.

Russia for some years has been working along the same lines as British physicists to achieve controlled thermonuclear reaction, but has not announced any success beyond the achievement of a temperature of 1,000,000 degrees centigrade.

The U.S. has been exchanging information with Britain on developments. There has been widespread criticism in London over reports that the U.S. left behind by Russia on Sputniks, persuaded Britain to delay announcing the Harwell success until American scientists could catch up. But Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has denied this.

In Washington, Strauss said today that the reports now released by the two countries show that "certain comparative observations which have been published in recent weeks about British and U.S. progress in this field . . . have been not only misleading but lacking in any foundation of fact."

Today's scientific reports actually showed that each country had achieved a certain result which the other had not.

The U.S. reported achievement of temperatures higher than those reported by British scientists—6,000,000 degrees centigrade against 5,000,000.

Britain, on the other hand, reported sustaining the temperature for a longer period of time—for periods of thousands of a second as compared with milliseconds of a second reported by the Americans.

The higher American temperatures were achieved in particular experiments that began just last month, whereas the British scientists apparently achieved theirs several months before. Neither country, however, alluded to any significance in such differences in results or time when achieved.

Temperatures of at least 100,000,000 degrees—sustained for perhaps several seconds—would be required to obtain useful power from the hydrogen, or fusion, reaction.

American officials, in today's report, also said that an analysis of the British results indicated that in the particular apparatus used by Britain, an "unknown process" must be in operation.

BUSH PILOT RESCUED
AFTER WEEK'S ORDEAL

WINNIPEG (CP)—A bush pilot who spent a week stranded on a frozen northern Manitoba lake in 20-below-zero weather, Thursday was rescued unharmed by the crew of an RCAF search plane.

James Leslie Dougans, 42, of Regina, landed on the lake Jan. 16 when his small bush plane ran afoul of bad flying weather and engine trouble. He was on a 95-mile flight from Utik Lake, 325 miles north of here, to Wabowden, Man., carrying a cargo of frozen lake trout. The fish was his main diet during the week.

... FUSION

heavy atoms is split or fissioned into two or more pieces. But all these pieces together aren't as heavy as the original single nucleus. Some of the matter was changed into useful energy.

The world hasn't got inexhaustible supplies of the heavy atoms that will split this way. One estimate is that all such reserves would give us energy equal to 10 to 100 times the amount of all the world's remaining coal.

A-SHES ARE MENACE

That's a lot, but with population increasing and more and more people using and wanting electricity and power, we could run out of atomic power in time. And the atomic splitting creates highly dangerous radioactive ashes which are becoming more and more troublesome to dump anywhere safely.

The H-bomb or fusion reaction offers a way out.

If actually fuses or combines lightweight atoms to create heavier ones. Two atoms of double-weight hydrogen become one atom of helium, for example. The heart of this helium atom weighs less than the two original hydrogen atoms. Some of the original mass turned into energy.

It takes tremendous heat and pressure to produce the fusion.

Our sun "burns" on this principle, and will keep going for billions of years this way. H-bombs are set off by the heat and pressure from an A-bomb explosion used as a trigger.

SOLVING PROBLEM

The peacetime problem is to get enormous temperatures and materials and methods to keep H-fusion going at a controlled rate and draw off useful heat from it. This is what scientists hope to solve. They are making some progress.

The H-fusion produces no radioactive ashes. The radioactivity from H-bombs mainly comes from the A-bomb trigger, or from materials, such as a uranium jacket, used to give it more explosive force.

Controlled H-fusion means we could use double-weight hydrogen, called deuterium, as our principal fuel. The world's oceans contain enough to power civilizations for millions or even billions of years.

And deuterium is not costly to get from the seas. Cost has been estimated as making deuterium less than 1 per cent as expensive as coal as a fuel.

CROWDS GETTING SMALLER

House 'Spectacular'
Has Rating Troubles

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

"What's going on here?" asked a man outside the B.C. legislature Thursday afternoon as the killed Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) swung into view.

"Oh, just the opening of parliament," said another man in a tired voice. "They're waiting for the lieutenant-governor to arrive."

This seemed characteristic of a certain apathy towards the opening of the House. The crowds were much smaller this year and no one looked the least bit excited by the thunder of the cannons or the fine body of marching men.

DRIFTED AWAY

Many drifted off during the hour-long wait for the reappearance of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross after opening the House.

Inside, the ceremonies were brightened by the introduction of new members William Spear (SC-Cariboo), Cedric Cox (CCF-Burnaby) and Gordon Gibson (SC-Delta).

There was a silent standing tribute to the late Ralph Chet-

Bill Survives Vote Price Stabilization

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The government's farm price stabilization bill survived an Opposition vote against it in the Commons Thursday, but it continued to win praise only from Progressive Conservatives.

The vote was on a CCF motion to refer the subject matter of the measure to the Commons agriculture committee for study. This would have killed the bill for this session.

All but three Liberals supported the government in the vote of 130 to 39 rejecting the motion. Liberals Walter Tucker, Rosthern; Azellus Denis, Montreal St. Denis; and Jean Boucher, Chateaugay-Huntingdon-LaPrairie, supported the CCF and Social Credit parties.

At the night sitting Fred Zaplitzky (CCF-Dauphin) sought to introduce another motion which would kill the bill and which proposed new legislation to establish a system of farm parity prices.

Speaker Roland Michener ruled the motion out of order on the ground that a system of parity prices would involve expenditure of money, and its introduction was a prerogative of the government only.

After the vote, Social Credit Leader Solon Low renewed his party's opposition to the government proposal in its present form.

He said his party will vote against the bill's principle on second reading unless Agriculture Minister Douglas Harkness amends it to include the principle of parity—to ensure that farmers get a price in fair relation to production costs and prices of other commodities.

He also demanded that supports be related to a base price in a fixed period.

The government bill would give Mr. Harkness authority to set 12-month support prices on any farm commodity, linked to average prices in the preceding 10 years. A minimum floor of 80 per cent of the 10-year average is provided for nine specified products: Cattle, hogs, sheep, butter, cheese and eggs, and non-prairie wheat, oats and barley.

Mr. Tucker criticized the government for excluding Prairie producers of wheat, oats and barley from coverage under the legislation.

CCFer Says PM's Stand Changed

Mervyn Johnson (CCF-Kindersley) said Prime Minister Diefenbaker, as an opposition member in 1944 when the Liberal scheme was adopted, favored 100 per cent parity, and had argued price supports should cover the full cost of production plus a reasonable profit. Why had not the prime minister included such a principle in the present bill?

Max Campbell (CCF-The Battlefords) said a floor price of 80 per cent of the 10-year-average base price is not enough.

Mr. Zaplitzky said it is inconsistent for Progressive Conservatives to talk about giving farmers a fair share of the national income, yet at the same time reject the principle of parity prices.

He said it is difficult for the CCF and farmers to accept the bill on faith and trust the agriculture minister to administer the law in such a way as to give farmers real help.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said the government is giving urgent consideration to means of providing economic assistance for the new Caribbean federation. He hoped to announce something shortly.

Deputy CCF Leader Stanley Knowles asked the government to "clear up the discrepancy" in unemployment figures issued by the National Employment Service and those prepared by the bureau of statistics.

The bureau, whose monthly estimates the government says represent actual unemployment, reported that unemployment at Dec. 14 was 386,000. The National Employment Service reported the number of persons registered for work at Jan. 9 was 796,000. This figure includes some persons who have jobs but are looking for new ones.

An expression on the face of Lionel Chevrier (L-Montreal Laurier), which cabinet ministers said was a laugh, produced an angry 10-minute crossfire.

George Marler (L-Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount) asked whether Revenue Minister Nowlan had been announcing government policy when he had said the administration would budget next year for a $500,000,000 deficit.

Finance Minister Fleming said Mr. Nowlan was ill but that the revenue minister assured him he had made no such statement.

Mr. Fleming then said Mr. Chevrier had laughed. He added that Mr. Nowlan is a very truthful man and his word should be accepted.

Mr. Chevrier said other ministers were denying in the Commons statements they had made outside the House.

Peron Awaits Chance To Flee to Caribbean

CARACAS (UP)—Informed sources expressed belief today that ousted Argentine ex-president Juan D. Peron is hiding somewhere in Venezuela, waiting his chance to slip away to one of the island territories of the Caribbean—probably the Dominican republic or a Dutch colony.

Official sources as well as members of the local Peronista colony discounted rumors that Peron has fled to Colombia. They pointed out that he would be no more welcome there than in Venezuela.

A government spokesman denied Washington reports that the new junta regime has ordered the arrest of the deposed Argentine dictator, saying that "no decision" has been reached in his case.

HOFFA NOW IN CHARGE

WASHINGTON (AP)—James R. Hoffa took over as president of the giant teamsters' union today on a compromise court settlement which wiped out charges that he had been elected by a rigged convention.

Hoffa will have to work for at least a year with a three-man board of monitors. He is under no obligation, under the settlement, to take any of their advice, but the board must report to the court which retained jurisdiction over the case.

Half of London Market Razed In Worst Blaze Since Blitz

LONDON (Reuters)—Half of Smithfield Market, London's main wholesale meat centre, was reduced to ruins today after a 24-hour-old fire burst from the basement area with a loud explosion to become the most spectacular blaze here since the wartime bombing.

After the death of two firemen yesterday from suffocation in the burning basement, all firemen were ordered out of the big central market when authorities realized it was about to go up.

The Curtain Goes Up

THE SPEECH FROM THE Throne, which cannot give detailed Government plans for legislation at the new British Columbia session—and would not if it could—at least provides hints of projects that carry wide interest.

Of major concern will be forestry policy—a subject on which debate cannot be restricted by the appointment of Mr. Gordon Sloan as adviser to the government on this chief money-making resource of the province.

Along with the broad questions of use, conservation and maintenance of the forests and the condition of industries on which British Columbia depends so heavily for prosperity, will also be discussion on features of administration.

Within the limits prescribed by certain court action now proceeding, the legislature will doubtless delve into earlier conduct of forest affairs. It will, moreover, have occasion to debate the methods by which the Government and certain ministers exercised, or failed to exercise, their authority in protecting the public interest in such matters.

This is a point, of course, with which the Speech from the Throne does not concern itself.

The Speech does, however, announce revision of the "Public Schools Act," and at a time when the Government has already set up a Royal Commission to re-assess educational fields up to the university level. What impact changes in the act will have on commission studies remains to be seen. Conceivably the amendments might deal with educational finance—a realm beyond the jurisdiction of the commission.

It is gratifying to find formal announcement of matching grant aid from the Government for the University of British Columbia to the extent of $7.5 millions. This is in line with understandings reached when the University's Development Fund Committee made its appeal to the public for support.

The Speech is brief in its words concerning cities and municipalities. "Certain plans to further assist cities and municipalities will be submitted to you," it states. Whether that further assistance will meet the pressing needs of the announced beneficiaries remains to be seen.

As was expected the Government plans to reopen the Municipal Act passed at the last session—a course rendered essential by certain glaring faults in the legislation originally rushed through without adequate study.

Particular interest will no doubt be aroused by the announced plan to reorganize the jail service.

Conforming to custom, the Speech lists the accomplishments of the administration in the year completed, makes general promises of efforts to expand provincial development and carry through major public works programs.

Since this is the Speech from the Throne of the Centennial session, it naturally draws attention to special events, and the visit of Princess Margaret later this year.

The formality of the Speech lifts the curtain on a new legislative drama. No one can tell at this point what the unrehearsed—and usually more significant—scenes will contain.

No Coast Guard, But . . .

TRANSPORT MINISTER George Hees has ruled out any prospect of Canada establishing its own Coast Guard in the immediate future.

He says such a "large and expensive undertaking" would duplicate functions now adequately performed through the co-operation of the RCN, RCAF, RCMP and transport and fisheries departments. Between them they attend to policing duties offshore and to air-sea rescue.

However, says the minister, his department is developing its own program to expand a fleet of 30 vessels now posted on both coasts and in the Great Lakes. As new ships are ordered, helicopter decks will probably be built on them.

Canadian developments are clearly different from the highly organized, efficient and useful United States Coast Guard.

At the same time some of the more dramatic features of the latter—its rescue services—are being built up in Canada under another name.

By the practical seafaring folk of this province the development of the native product is being noted with interest and approval. Apparently Mr. Hees is disposed to continue the program established under the preceding administration to bring a larger measure of safety to small boat operations on this coast.

A full Coast Guard service patterned on the American example might be better, but Canadians will not be disposed to quibble over a name, or some Coast Guard characteristics, if the vital search and rescue facilities are expanded adequately.

Keep Them Carving

IT WILL BE A SHARP BLOW to burgeoning interest in native Indian culture and a serious curtailment of Victoria's publicity appeal if totem carving in Thunderbird Park is discontinued, as reports suggest it might be.

The poles which have been produced there, and the actual work of the artists, have drawn favorable attention from people in widely scattered parts of the world. While the carving continues it reflects concern here for the artistry of a previous civilization and thereby is an effective agent in raising the morale of descendants of the earlier craftsmen. This in itself is highly important.

Beyond that the distinctive creations add one more attraction to this community for both our own citizens and travelers. At a time when the highly competitive tourist business develops many artificial gimmicks to draw visitors, we can ill afford to abandon an authentic showpiece of this nature.

Two Men Doing a Job

THE CORDIAL MEETING OF Sir Edmund Hillary and Dr. Vivian Fuchs at the South Pole the other day should do much to dispel the synthetic appearance of rivalry between the two men—an earlier appearance not justified by facts.

Dr. Fuchs is moving methodically along the route he planned to take across Antarctica, is performing the scientific tests which are the objective of his project and is obviously pleased to have met his co-worker Sir Edmund.

'The Plural Cavity'

A WRITER IN "NIEMAN REPORTS," one of the most interesting and effective trade publications of journalism, has written briefly and sharply on "The Plural Cavity."

"The Plural Cavity," it turns out, is the big hole in our educational fabric which should be filled with instruction on the proper way to write plural nouns.

The Nieman contributor cites the case of the proper noun "Jones." Too many people, he says, think the plural of Jones is Joneses—the apostrophe defining Jones in number as distinguished from the non-apostrophed Jones alone.

The correct plural of Jones, he remarks, is Joneses. They are the people you try to keep up with. But newspapers have, and are going to have, their difficulties trying to keep up with the proper spelling.

Maybe it would be easier to persuade the individuals of the name to drop the terminal "s" in the singular. Then Mr. Jones and Mrs. Jones would automatically become the Jones and save all this confusion.

BEATING US TO IT

By B. A. TOBIN

The Threat From Below

EVERYONE is familiar with the oft-repeated advice that you shouldn't send a boy to do a man's job. It's fairly sound, too, as advice goes. It ranges in application all the way from your choice of which mechanic to do your car repairs, or which child you'll send to the corner to mail your letter, up to which politician you'll select to represent you in the nation's capital, or which general you favor to lead the defence of your country. A "boy" in any of these jobs could create a fair amount of confusion, even disaster. A "man" might do the same, but the odds are with him.

In the famous case of the "Message to Garcia" the American commander picked the best man he could find to complete a hazardous and gruelling job. It's perhaps as apt an example of the principle as you could find.

Charles Dickens' Mr. Barkis took a chance, of course, when he chose young David Copperfield to carry the fateful message that he was willing, but in this particular case probably the boy was the best choice that could have been made.

With everybody subscribing to the general thesis, then, it comes as something of a shock to read that a much better courier than man is apparently available for one of the most important jobs now facing the world.

A news item states that American scientists have decided to send aloft in their satellite, to report on the situation in outer space, not an intelligent, thinking, observant, and lord-of-creation man—but a humble, way-down-the-scale lump of yeast.

Our Degredation

Could anything be more humiliating? Homo Sapiens may not know it, but he's never been so insulted in his life.

Not only have the scientists chosen yeast as the best "man" for the job. They go farther and say that yeast can do a much better job of reporting on space conditions than a dog could. Since the dog is man's best friend, that's adding another intolerable insult to our race.

Imagine! A one-celled little upstart like yeast, a mere tyro in the art of climbing the evolutionary ladder, a creature lower even than the creepy, crawling things which we consider it beneath our dignity to know the names of, a speck of protoplasm that was given all the opportunity in the world and never got anywhere—imagine this, I say, stealing the space job right from under our human noses.

What will yeast detect in space that man cannot? How can yeast describe the boundless interstellar depths, the effects of cosmic rays and the glories of the infinite, better than man? Yet science has chosen yeast for the job. Is this the thin edge of the wedge in a diabolical plan to replace the human being with what we heretofore have considered as the lower orders of creation?

I can imagine the scene some time in the future when this trend has taken hold. An official car draws up before some embassy building. A servile, uniformed human alights with a costly crystal jar containing a jelly-like substance. He advances to the door, which is opened by another human lackey.

"The amoeba delegation to negotiate world disarmament," announces the uniformed escort, and he marches in to the conference room to deposit the one-celled organisms sent to represent his country in the global talks.

Science has decided, it will be announced, that the amoeba can do the job better than man. (As a matter of fact, who's kidding?)

Instead of summit conferences, we will have valley talks, with creatures from the lower depths handling our affairs. Perhaps the final peace treaty of the globe will be negotiated in some lukewarm, green-slimed pond, where the animalculae of the world will settle our affairs as we could not settle them ourselves.

Lowly Ambition

Even now some tiny Canadian protozoan may have his sights set on the prime ministership, while his counterpart to the south may be cultivating the belief that any healthy young virus can grow up to become president.

If my suspicions are confirmed, the human race faces a new threat. For ages our fear has been that some lower form of life might wipe us out—some flu germ, some insect plague, some impossibly microscopic misanthrope which would rise and smite us.

But now the danger is more subtle. We shall not be attacked, we shall merely be displaced. The unicellular creatures, having proved themselves more able, will quietly be promoted over us and we shall eventually find ourselves relegated to an inferior position in the scale of things.

That, apparently, could be the fate that awaits us if we don't watch out. I am going to keep a very close eye on this business of sending yeast aloft to report on creation. Frankly, with all the bread that's waiting to be leavened, this looks to me like moonlighting.

ROUTINE, NOT RUTS

Children need the security and confidence which comes from a compulsory routine, but in this framework there should be wide encouragement of initiative. How Old Is the Rainbow?

B. A. Tobin, in his column of January 20 writes, in part, "Of ancestors going right back to Adam, or—to a hunk of primordial green seaweed."

Is it of little moment, with the threat of thermo nuclear conflict confronting us? In October, 1957, I wrote Mr. Clyde Kennedy, public relations officer at Chalk River, Ontario, since I had been informed that he was possessed of information relative to tests made of marine life uncovered from the Permafrost of the Arctic; maybe tests of age, by the radio carbon clock.

I received no reply, nor to further enquiry about a month ago, and I have no way of knowing whether Gremilins are at work, or if the information acquired is being kept under wraps.

It would be a revelation to find that organic phenomena, ostensibly associated with "the Deluge," came within the time period bounded by recorded history?

How old is the Rainbow, as a natural phenomenon? Have you any available sources of information open to you?

Work When We Can

The question asked by "A Pensioner" in the "Times," Jan. 10, "Why don't we work?" can be answered by saying, "we do, when we can."

He made five statements that cannot be supported by any valid evidence. He implied:

1. That the high cost of production of which wages was the chief factor was the one reason why Canada can "no longer" compete in the markets of the world. But, except for the U.S.A., wages constitute a smaller percentage of the total product in Canada than in any other country; because of high technology.

2. That wages in Canada are the highest of any country. According to the Gordon Commission, average living standards are 20 to 30 per cent lower here than those in the U.S.

3. That industrialists have been receiving more than a reasonable profit. Peer into the industrialists' minds and it will be found that there's no such thing as "more" than a reasonable profit. Their instincts tell them that the highest they can get is a reasonable profit.

4. That low wages and low profits will enable industrialists to capture lost markets. Only if they are there. This didn't work during the last depression.

5. That because West Germany is one of the most prosperous countries in the world, its people are prosperous too. Living standards are far lower in West Germany than in Canada. Perhaps the suicide rate there can indicate just how prosperous the people are. Its the highest of any country at 29.6 per 100,000 of population compared to Canada's 7.1 (London Economist). The living standards of a civilization are not determined so much by how hard its people work but by how much the machinery of production is developed and how it is owned. Present standards everywhere will take a huge jump when that machinery reverts to all society.

Canadian Public Health Association.
Canadian Dental Association,

The statistics from Montreal show that 98.6 per cent of all children by the time they reach their fifth birthday have dental caries. In the West Kootenays a recent survey showed that of a total of 144 Grade 1 children only 13 were free from dental caries or decay.

In 1945 Brantford, Ontario, was the first town in Canada to accept fluoridation. In 1955, after 10 years of fluoridation, the children of 6-8 years of age in 1945 were again examined and found to have a 20 per cent reduction in tooth decay as compared with a similar age group who were not using fluoridated water.

The addition of fluoride to the water cannot be considered as "Mass Medication" since water lacking in this element or any other food stuffs lacking in necessary substances, must be replaced, either by adding to the foods taken or from a bottle.

In the case of the iodine lack in many parts of the North American continent, iodized salt has been in use for many years to replace the lack of the trace element in the drinking water. Similarly, everyone is only too familiar with enriched flour where vitamins, iron and calcium have been added to replace deficiencies in foods. Fluorine, an essential trace element similar to iodine, should be replaced, due to the lack of the ion in foods.

FROM WASHINGTON By WALTER LIPPMANN

The Propaganda Contest

WE are engaged, so we are telling ourselves, in a propaganda contest with the Russians: We must prove to mankind that we rather than they are the true champions of peace. Although the progress of this contest cannot be scored exactly, we know on no less an authority than Mr. Dulles himself that at this stage in the game the Russians are leading. The best evidence of this is that there is mounting popular pressure in the Western world in favor of accepting their proposal to hold another meeting at the summit.

Lippmann

The idea of a meeting at the summit has become the rallying point of the opposition parties in Western Europe, and there are important signs that the idea is making deep inroads among the parties which support the governments.

In Germany, the furious success of Mr. Kennan's lectures has been a clear sign of the strength of the opposition to Dr. Adenauer's government. On the question of a parley at the summit, Mr. Macmillan is on the political defensive at home, and even in the United States President Eisenhower and Mr. Dulles have felt that they must in some measure bend with the pressure.

Strongest Reasons

Yet there are the strongest reasons for thinking that no good and much harm would be done if under present conditions, there were a meeting at the summit. Mr. Dulles has surely been right in wishing to avoid such a meeting and no one has argued his case more cogently than Mr. Kennan himself.

The question we must ask ourselves is why this wrong-headed idea is winning such popular support in the West. The answer is that the democracies are easily deluded, and will grasp at any straw which seems to offer relief from the threat of war and the heavy burden of the race of armaments. That may well be true. But it begs the underlying question which is why the democracies are grasping at this straw.

The answer to that question is, I believe, that the leaders of the democracies are not giving them anything else to grasp. Mr. Dulles, Dr. Adenauer, and Mr. Macmillan have given the impression not only that they do not want to negotiate at the summit but that they do not want to negotiate at all.

They have created this impression because on the crucial issues of the cold war—in Germany, in the Middle East and in Eastern Asia—they have been standing inflexibly for terms which they and all the world know are not negotiable.

Propaganda Contest

I have been talking about the propaganda contest in which we are engaged, and I do not mean to suggest that there is any near prospect that the Russians will negotiate a limited settlement. There is, on the contrary, good reason to think that both sides prefer the existing division of Germany and of Europe to any settlement that has thus far been proposed.

The Western governments are afraid that a reunited Germany, with the British and American and Russian troops withdrawn, would hold the balance of power and use it to make Germany dominant in Europe. The Soviet government is afraid that if ever it withdrew from Eastern Germany, the whole satellite empire would blow up and be replaced not by neutralist governments but by implacably anti-Russian governments.

These reciprocal fears make for the maintenance of the status quo. They are the standing obstacles to any general settlement, be it at the summit or through normal diplomacy.

Both Halves

The chances are that this deadlock will not be resolved by the initiative of the great powers, but rather by political developments in both halves of Europe.

In the Eastern half there is always some prospect of a revolt of the Hungarian type. In the Western half there is the likelihood that within a few years, within the term of the present U.S. administration, there will be new governments in Western Europe, and that in these governments the existing opposition parties will play a leading part.

If and when that happens, it will be very important that we should not have alienated them and thus find ourselves on the outside looking in.

How Sang Is Your Froid?

THE very young lady who visits our house is the Helpful Hannah type. On occasions you'll find her washing the kitchen paintwork with a dish cloth that she has failed to wash.

Regularly she sweeps the floor, taking a short grip on the broom and wielding it like a hockey player swinging his stick in anger. We dodge around behind her to stand in front of the kitchen range's glass door because the handle of the broom stretches past her a couple of feet and she assumes no responsibility for what she cannot see.

The very young lady has a periodic passion for tidiness. She'll move irritably about, closing drawers that may be half an inch open. And when a cutting board is left out for no apparent reason, she's certain to push it back in its slot.

When she was smaller and couldn't see on top, she pushed in a cutting board holding a casserole in which a lemon pudding was cooking. The results were spectacular and the floor a bit sticky.

The boss of our house handles these incidents rather well. She explains to the young lady that it's necessary to be careful. But she does not discourage the young miss from further activity.

It's important, says the boss of our house, to let children try to be helpful. It gives them confidence, makes them feel useful.

LET THEM FEEL USEFUL

And if an accident occurs, well, try not to upset the youngster too much unless the accident arises from the child's disobedience. "They have to learn," says the boss of our house. "If you don't let them carry kitchen crockery around, they'll never feel safe when they are old enough to handle bone china."

I watch the system with all the detachment possible in a highly strung person.

The other day the very young lady was demonstrating her maturity and social competence by passing around a full box of chocolates. As she swung past the table, the box caught its corner and the chocolates fell in an avalanche.

The young miss looked shocked, but before her face could crumple in distress, the boss of our house switched the young lady's interest.

"Pick them up," she told her small charge

as the dog, Susy, sidled over, just looking, of course. "Pick them up and put them in the box. Don't bother about their little paper nests. They're a nuisance anyhow."

So the young lady busied herself picking them up and passed them around again. I'd sort of lost my appetite for chocolates, but I took one.

The very young lady, I presume, will be more careful the next time she takes chocolates around—and she won't have to overcome an excessive nervousness because the crash incident was passed off without fuss.

Thus, I take it, the child is developing sang-froid. I wish I had developed it. Life must be so much easier to the man who has it.

All my sang-froid is imaginary. In fantasy I can handle the most embarrassing situations with the easy grace of a true aristocrat. The right words slip easily from my lips.

FOOT IN MOUTH

When embarrassing situations actually occur, I mumble incoherently around the foot that gets stuck in my mouth.

I remember once when a friend of mine tried to adjust a Venetian blind in the living room with all the enthusiasm of a tug-of-war team. Naturally he yanked the whole contraption off the wall. That was an occasion when I should have said, "Think nothing of it. I do it all the time."

I was so busy checking the impulse to say, "You clumsy oaf" that the echoes of the crashing blind resounded through a chill and uncomfortable silence. He knew, and right well, that I didn't like people tearing Venetian blinds off my windows.

I've always wanted to adopt an easy tolerance to policemen in minor traffic cases. So I should, I'm a taxpayer and relatively law-abiding. But when a simple operation like the $1 over-parking gouge is performed on me, I'm reduced to stammering meekness. I go to the traffic office and ask if I can please pay, here. It's only after I'm on the street again that I think of what I should have said.

When I eat a cream puff in public and the inside squishes out over my tie and shirt-front I never can pass it off gracefully. It always renders me a lout.

In a dozen ways I lose the sang in my froid, or the froid in my sang. But maybe it isn't my fault. I never spilled enough lemon pudding in my childhood or dropped a sufficient number of chocolates on the floor. It's the early training that counts.

U.S. Economic Growth Still Ahead of Canada

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

New Civic Pensions Near Industry Level

Proposed amendments to the Municipal Superannuation Act likely will make the scheme more comparable with pension schemes of major industries and senior governments, city comptroller Dennis A. Young said Thursday.

At present, pensions are smaller than those granted in most pension plans, in relation to the employee's contributions.

Mr. Young based his remark on planning outlined at the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention last September. Promise of amendment was contained in the Speech from the Throne.

JOINT FETE TONIGHT HONORS RABBIE BURNS

The Victoria Burns Club and St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society combine tonight to honor Scotland's poet, "Rabbie" Burns.

Dinner, concert and ball will be held at Holyrood House, starting at 6.45.

Professor R. T. Wallace, vice-principal of Victoria College, will give the address to the "immortal memory" while Rev. T. H. McAllister will address the Haggis.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is trying to "catch up" with United States economic growth and the end of this process is "not yet in sight," a report on economic relations between the two countries suggested today.

The study, prepared for the Gordon economic commission by two Canadian economists, said there still is a large gap in the relative economic wealth between the two countries—perhaps about 20 or 30 per cent.

For example, American national production, on a per capita basis, amounted to some $2,366 in 1955 compared to $1,719 in Canada. Average disposable income in Canada that year amounted to some $1,169, about 71 per cent of the American figure.

But during the next few decades the rate of growth of Canada's population and production will likely far exceed the American rate, the report said.

U.S. population might rise by some 51 per cent in the 1950-75 period, to 229,000,000 from 152,000,000. Canada's population might increase by some 75 per cent to 24,000,000 from 14,000,000.

FASTER RATE

The report used a 1950 population figure. Canada's population is expected to reach 17,000,000 within a few months.

The report said national production in the U.S. may double in the 1950-75 period to some $588,000,000,000—an increase of some 2.8 per cent a year. Canada's production might rise at an annual rate of 3.25 per cent to some $53,000,000,000.

Thus, Canada might be able to accumulate wealth at a faster pace than the U.S., the world's wealthiest country. But some factors might interfere.

The use of atomic power and automation might widen the Canada-U.S. wealth gap. It appeared that large-scale production would be required to make full use of these developments and in this the U.S. might have an advantage because of the bigger American home market.

Another problem was that any decline in foreign investment in Canada would retard Canada's economic growth.

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By STANLEY BURKE

Cafeteria Melting Pot

NEW YORK—Human refinement has reached a new high at the United Nations cafeteria.

You go down the line there and point out your choices, just as you would at any paleolithic eatery in Canada but then you get to the beverages and civilization comes crashing in. You can order wine—red wine or white wine—in a cafeteria.

One glass of white wine, you say, trying to act nonchalant. Actually you feel as odd as you would ordering a double scotch from a bus driver. You're slightly surprised when the man doesn't raise his eyebrows and calmly pours your wine and hands it to you.

It's California wine. The white is quite pleasant. The red is a bit rough but well worth the 20 cents you pay for it.

They also have saris at the UN and here again civilization reaches a new high. Surely no raiment ever flowed round the female form more enchantingly than the sari. It's more graceful than a ball-room gown, more suggestive than a Bikini.

The sari, I'm told, is simplicity itself, simply a length of material knotted at the waist and then flowed around the body. It's simple and the ultimate effect is simply delightful, especially when worn with a little bodice top and bare midriff.

HANDS OFF!

I've also learned in my two weeks at the UN that the red dot Indian women wear on their foreheads was originally a "hands off" signal indicating that wearer was married. Today, however, the marriage age is becoming older and many unmarried women wear forehead dots purely as cosmetic adornment. Originally they were put on with a red rouge but today they are often made of paper. Sometimes Indian women are daintily gay and wear stars, crescents or other shapes.

There is also a prodigious amount of work done at the UN, most of which you never hear of. The man who sat with me at lunch yesterday, for example, was an American negro working on an economic report on Morocco. He pointed out that the first step in assisting in the development of any country is to find out what is happening there now. This is more difficult than it sounds for most underdeveloped countries have little statistical material and few men who either appreciate the need for it or know how to prepare it.

Among other things, my friend told me something about the world slave trade, something most people think went out a century ago. It still flourishes, however, especially in the Middle East. Slaves are rounded up as far away as Northwest Africa and moved across North Africa to the slave markets of the Middle East.

The United Nations secretariat is a mine of information but the ore is more difficult to work than in Ottawa. A Canadian civil servant has only one master, his minister, and senior men know what they can safely say to reliable newspaper men. They often speak with remarkable candor, sometimes even giving out information which is quite opposed to policies of their ministers. At the United Nations, the situation is different. There international civil servants have 82 masters and the only way you can please 82 masters is to say nothing.

FURROWS AND DOGS

But one of the most interesting bits of information I've picked up on the betterment of mankind and the preservation of human life is at Greenwich, Conn., where I live. (This is one of the dormitory communities around the big city.) It's located within convenient commuting distance—only an hour and 10 minutes each way, portal to portal.

On many residential streets around here they install bone-shattering bumps, which can't be crossed at over 15 miles an hour, to show down traffic and protect children. The bumps consist of six-inch ridges of asphalt across the roads marked with reflectors to save the necks and shock-absorbers of night time drivers.

If there were furrows like these on Canadian streets, there would be fewer furrows in the brows of Canadian parents.

And talking about conditions in Greenwich, I must report that my next door neighbor, Carl Becker, has a boxer dog by the name of Dempsey. This dog Dempsey, who is one of the toughest looking beasts I have ever seen, sleeps in a dog house equipped with electric radiant heat, thermostatically controlled.

I wonder how he'd make out in a scrap with a Russian wolfhound from a non-thermostatically controlled kennel?

Extortion Try Foiled By Son Of Late Jurist

(From CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER — Police said Thursday a man tried to extort money from Archie Wood, 56, of nearby New Westminster, son of a late B.C. Supreme Court Justice.

A suspect was arrested in a downtown telephone booth with in yards of the police station here.

Mr. Wood had earlier complained to police about telephone calls from a man who demanded $1,200 because "I know a secret about your father," the late Mr. Justice H. S. Wood. The man later reduced the demand to $20.

EXPLOSIVES ON TRACK

SUMMERLAND—A crude bundle of explosives was removed from the CPR track near here Thursday by RCMP. The fuse had not been ignited. Train schedules were not interrupted.

BOY DROWNED

VANCOUVER — Six-year-old Bradley Matthews, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Matthews of suburban Burnaby, was drowned Thursday in the swollen waters of Eagle Creek. The child was walking home from school with friends when he fell into the water.

RADAR TRAP WORKS

NORTH VANCOUVER—A radar car was used for the first time here. By late Thursday 45 motorists had been given speeding tickets, 10 of them in a 10-minute period.

Sarah to Visit Father Winston

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Actress Sarah Churchill will leave by plane Wednesday to join her father, Sir Winston Churchill, on the French Riviera, friends said Thursday.

Miss Churchill will depart immediately upon completion of filming a television drama in which she stars. She is described as still "wan and sad" after being fined $50 on a drunk charge. Miss Churchill said at the time she was emotionally upset.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Saanich police court Thursday:

Philip Williams, RCN, and Patricia Barter, 901 Snowdrop, $25 each for driving without a licence.

Peter James Hallas, 625 Lamson, $35; Alexander William Reid, 4065 Torquay, $30; Reginald Louie Simon, 1718 Carriek, $30, and Gordon W. Stewart, 1836 Ferndale, $20, for speeding over 30.

Clement L. Ridley, 3148 Metchoshin, $35, and Frederick E. Van Ilberg, 3895 Hobbs, $30, for speeding over 50.

Henry Robert Cameron, 2975 Orillia, and Robert Sidney Beadnell, 298 Beaumont, $75 each for driving while under suspension.

Olive May Baldwin, 666 West Burnside, $25 for reversing when unsafe.

John G. Cameron, RCN, $40 and licence suspension, for careless driving.

David H. Robinson, 650 Brookleigh, $15 for violation of driver's licence restriction and $35 for careless driving.

Hendrick Van Boven, 3615 Richmond, $50 and licence suspension; Leonard, Kissinger Okell, 24 Douglas, $35, and Norman G. Newbold, 1311 Johnson, $35 and licence suspension, for careless driving.

Flyer Grads Shine

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins, collecting odds and ends from other National Hockey League clubs during the last couple of years, have pasted together a production line that so far this season has scored more than a third of the team's goals.

Bronco Horvath, Vic Stasiuk and Johnny Bucyk each scored a goal Thursday night as Bruins edged Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 in the only NHL game scheduled. The three are all graduates of Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League.

The victory, Bruins' first at home since Christmas night, enabled them to take over sole possession of fourth place with 41 points, two behind Detroit Red Wings and two ahead of Toronto Maple Leafs. Chicago remained in last place, three points behind Leafs.

BEST SEASON YET

Stasiuk, 28, is having his best season since he joined Boston two years ago. His record of 17 goals and 24 assists with the season just past the halfway mark has already eclipsed his last two seasons' 37 points and 40 points. The previous two seasons he was a lack-lustre member of Red Wings and the Flyers.

Also a Detroit castoff is the 22-year-old Bucyk. After 1½ seasons with Wings, in which he scored only 11 goals and assisted on 19, he's racked up 13 goals and 22 assists in his first season at Boston.

Horvath, a centre who was WHL scoring champion a few years ago with Edmonton but who then slowed down considerably when he hit the NHL, is back to form. At 28, he is the club's top marksman with 19 goals and 28 assists and fourth in the league scoring race.

The other Boston goal came from Don McKenney. Chicago marksmen were Eric Nesterenko, Glen Skov and Dutch Reibel, also all picked up in trades in the last couple of years.

Bruins took a first-period lead when Horvath stroked a rebound past Chicago goalie Glenn Hall. Nesterenko tied it up with only 14 seconds left in the period.

Bucyk made it 2-1 on a perfect pass from Stasiuk. He beat Hall on a low-angle shot into the far corner from 25 feet out. McKenney added his before Skov tightened it up to 3-2 at the end of the second.

Stasiuk took a pass from Bucyk and flipped the puck over Hall's shoulder before Reibel scored the last goal at 17:13 of the finale.

Holburn's Triple Sparks Vic High To Second Win

Steve Holburn sparked Victoria High to its second successive victory of the young Inter-High School Junior Soccer League season, firing three goals as the Vics whipped Oak Bay, 5-1 Thursday afternoon.

Don Elphick and Dave Reese each scored once for the Vic High side while Bob Usher notched Oak Bay's lone tally early in the opening half.

Vic High, which moved into first place with a one-point margin over Mount Douglas, had to struggle to build up a 2-1 lead in the first half, but was in full command after the break.

Is Everybody Really Happy?

Middleweight champion Carmen Basilio (left) clowns merrily with former heavyweight king Joe Louis and ex-middleweight ruler Ray Robinson (right) Thursday after Basilio and Robinson signed contract for title bout March 25. Smiles should be easy for Basilio, who will probably collect biggest purse of his career, but his playmates are beset with worries. Louis owes over $1,000,000 in back taxes and Robinson, also in deep trouble with tax department, is facing at least three law suits. (AP Wirephoto.)

DOMINION TENPIN EVENT GETS UNDER WAY MAY 16

Dates of Victoria's first Canadian tenpin bowling championships have been announced.

Andy Palmer, executive member of the Victoria City Tenpin Association, was notified this morning that the Dominion final between four zone champions will be held May 16, 17 and 18.

Bill Sutherland, B.C. manager of the sponsoring Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, also announced that the B.C. roll-off is scheduled at New Westminster March 29 and 30 and the B.C.-Alberta roll-off will be in the home city of the Alberta champion May 2 and 3.

Winners in the B.C.-Alberta, Saskatchewan-Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec-Maritimes zone roll-offs will compete for the Crosley Trophy in Victoria.

Shipley to Handle Tide Toe Chores

Victoria's Crimson Tide will be starting the second lap of its intercity rugby chase for the McKechnie Cup without the services of kicking expert Doug Brown.

Brown is suffering from an ear ailment and his chores with the Tide, which plays University of British Columbia Thunderbirds at Varsity Stadium Saturday, will be handled by Bob Shipley.

Vancouver Rebs appear headed for victory after scoring wins over both Victoria and UBC, but could still be nosed out by the winner of Saturday's match in the double round-robin series.

While the Tide is visiting Point Grey, JBAA and Oak Bay Wanderers will play an exhibition match at Macdonald Park and Victoria College and HMCS Venture, originally scheduled at Carnarvon Park, will battle on the lower Macdonald Park pitch. Royal Roads Cadets will host the JBAA second squad. Games start at 2:15.

Tide coach Doug Bray, manager Dave Bayliss and Victoria Rugby Union President Stuart Smith have selected the following players for Saturday's match:

Frank Gower, Lorne Ross, Frank Berry, Dick Hales, Gerry Main, Ray Caltou, Gary Webster, Harry Turner, Sam Pat-

Bosox Offer Accepted By Double X

BOSTON (AP)—Jimmy Fox Thursday accepted a coaching position with the Boston Red Sox organization and looked for a happy ending to his broken life of a week ago.

James Silin, Fox's business manager, and the Boston club announced jointly famed Double X agreement to act as coach of the Minneapolis farm team and batting instructor throughout the organization.

Silin found Fox jobless and broke last week in Miami. Fox, the hall of famer who compiled a .325 batting average and 534 home runs in his 20 major league seasons, was sought for work ranging from $100 a week to $45,000 a year.

No contract was signed or salary announced for the Red Sox job.

Robinson Prefers Underdog's Role

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson is unimpressed that he is an early 7-to-5 underdog for his March 25 middleweight encore with champion Carmen Basilio at Chicago Stadium.

"I think I've been the underdog ever since I started making comebacks," he said. "Maybe once I wasn't—that was against Tiger Jones, and, wow, did that guy give me a licking. But I like being the underdog. It takes the pressure off."

The Jones pounding was the only time Robinson has lost in Chicago Stadium. He won the 160-pound title there from Jake Lamotta in 1951 and twice regained it in the same ring.

"I like the officiating in Chicago very much," he said Thursday in an interview following formal contract signing ceremonies. "I have no beefs about officiating elsewhere, but I just like it here especially."

Basilio couldn't be as enthusiastic. He lost his welterweight crown two years ago to Johnny Saxton in a controversial decision at Chicago Stadium. He also lost there to Chuck Davey and Billy Graham.

BASILIO CONFIDENT
"I expect to have a change of luck this time," he said. "If I fight the same kind of fight I did last time, I should win again."

Basilio took Robinson's title on a split 15-round decision Sept. 23 at Yankee Stadium. Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, predicted a record indoor gross gate of $500,000 and 19,000 attendance. The record is $422,918 set at Chicago Stadium for the Tony Zale-Rocky Graziano scrap July 16, 1947. It drew 18,547 fans.

Contracts filed with the Illinois athletic commission do not specify a return match but it was understood Robinson and Basilio have a mutual understanding. If Robinson wins a rematch will be in the making for June in New York.

Marlene Meets Medalist Today

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (CP)—Canadian champion Marlene Stewart Streiff of Toronto defeated Agnes Kage of Akron, Ohio, 2 up Thursday in the 26th annual Helen Lee Doherty golf tournament.

Today Mrs. Streiff will meet Barbara Romack Porter of Sacramento, Calif., in the feature match of the day. Porter, tournament medalist Wednesday with a qualifying score of 76, kept the favorite's role by defeating Phyllis Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., 4 and 3.

But today, Arcaro, Shoemaker, Johnny Longden, Ralph Neves and several other dependable little guys aren't around. Seven jocks are sitting out injuries and suspensions at Santa Anita.

Shoemaker was set down for five days and won't be

Regals' Formula Hard on Warriors

By The Canadian Press

Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals are 17 points behind pace-setting Winnipeg in the Prairie Division of the Western Hockey League, but you'd never know it by the way they play hockey against the Warriors!

The third-place Regals seem to take flimsy delight in bringing the division leaders down a peg, as they did Thursday night to the tune of 6-4 at Saskatoon. Of the last five games which the two teams have played against each other Saskatoon-St. Paul has won three.

The Thursday victory moved the Regals three points ahead of last-place Calgary and within 11 of second-place Edmonton Flyers.

The game was the only one of the night.

Tonight New Westminster is at Seattle and Edmonton continues its four-game tour of the coast with a date in Vancouver.

Doug Bentley, playing his first organized hockey game in two winters, scored two assists for the Regals, both on goals by Les Colwill.

TWO FOR PRIMEAU

Saskatoon marksmen in addition to Colwill were Reg Primeau, with two; Lyle Willey and Bob Kadel, for Winnipeg.

Frank Arnett, Howie Glover, Earl Ingardfield and Art Stratton scored.

Warriors pulled goalie Ray Mikulan at 19:21 but the strategy failed.

Although Warriors lead Flyers by six points, coach Alf Pike apparently isn't satisfied with the play of some of his charges.

Thursday night he acquired a high-scoring, proven winger from Calgary in a two-for-one trade.

Winnipeg picked up Steve Witluk, 29, from Calgary in return for wingers Murray Wilkie and George Ford in a straight trade.

The new rightwinger will become the only Winnipeg player who has scored more than 100 WHL goals. He had scored 113 goals in 302 games prior to the start of the 1957-58 season.

Ford and Wilkie were obtained by Warriors in trades last season with Vancouver and Regals respectively.

COUGAR SHAREHOLDERS GET ANSWERS TONIGHT

Shareholders of the Victoria Hockey Club, many of whom petitioned for a meeting to question their directors on reasons for the dismissal of general manager Colin Kilburn, should get their answers tonight.

They will also learn more about the club's condition.

President Dr. Andy Reid, who will call the extraordinary meeting at Liberal Headquarters, 1322A Government Street to order at 8 p.m., says the directors will discuss "the present status of the club, and clear up the recent Colin Kilburn incident."

On the playing front, coach Pat Egan, attempting to bolster the Cats for a home-stretch drive for a playoff position, said he had encouraging talk with Doug Anderson, veteran forward who was unable to come to terms with the club earlier this season.

"We had a good talk," Egan said after sending the Cougars through a workout this morning, and it should be only a couple of days until Doug is back in the fold."

CRAIG RETURNING, TOO!

Art Gets Restless At Tourney Time

Victoria table tennis champion Art Ngai apparently doesn't like the thought of passing on his singles crown without having someone fight for it.

It had been reported earlier that Ngai would not be returning in defence of his title, but Thursday he announced that he would be in there with his best shots for the first round of the Victoria championships, opening tonight at Club Sirocco.

Ngai will be facing stiff competition from brother Eddie, his former B.C. doubles championship partner, Ray Dawson and Gordie Chan.

A second battle is in the making among the lady contestants in the annual event with notice that former perennial titlist Nancy Craig has tossed her chapeau back into the ring.

Nancy also expects to find a wealth of talent opposing her. Her strongest opposition will come from May Wong, the defending champion, and Val Druce, reigning Victoria Table Tennis Club champion.

The junior crown is another toss-up with Brian Hobbs and Ricky Gough equally considered for the honors.

OUTDOOR REPORT

BY

Doug Peden

Any fisherman who has taken a look at any of Vancouver Island's rivers during the past few days know that the odds are about 5-1 against pulling a steelhead up on shore.

Gordie Whan knew the deck was stacked against him Wednesday, but possibly because he likes bucking the odds or, more probably, because the weather wasn't good enough for swatting golf balls around the Cowichan course, he tackled the steelies on the Cowichan.

What happened? Gordie hauled out a silvery steelhead just below the Silver Bridge that missed hitting 15 pounds by a single ounce.

It wasn't big enough to get him back in the top spot in the Cowichan River steelhead derby. Ron Gammie had topped Whan out of the upper berth Tuesday when he plucked a 16-pound, one-ounce whopper on the weight-in scales at Bucky's Sport Shop.

Earlier, Gordie had weighed in a 12-pound, 14-ounce ironhead, John Gilkin had recorded a 12½-pounder and George Syrotuck had entered an 8:15 specimen.

Fishing hopes were high while water conditions at the Cowichan were improving rapidly last weekend. But the river started climbing again Wednesday and last night was up a couple of feet and packing lots of mud.

It's the same story all around the Island and it will be either a lucky man or a real expert who collects a steelhead this weekend.

Muddy water has also taken the edge off fishing for winter springs and bluebacks off Crofton and for the small grilse that were hanging around in Cowichan Bay.

Some good winter springs are cruising off Qualicum, Comox and Campbell River but boating in those waters can be a risky recreation in winter months.

Sheltered Saanich Inlet continues to offer some choice fishing fare. Results were only fair Sunday, but in the past four days, limit catches of bluebacks and springs around the six-pound mark have been common. A few salmon around 10 pounds, like the ones taken by John Rose, Sid Sidaway and Vic Humphries are also being pulled in.

The blues have been hitting bucktail flies and small spoons trolled near the surface and both blues and small springs are grabbing deeper lures.

Big springs are still around off Oak Bay, where rough water has kept boats on shore for a few days. Weather was good over the weekend and a fair number of husky springs, including a 29-pounder, Kay Scott's 13-pounder and the 27½ and 10-pounders landed by Tom Harper, were brought in.

Hunters with high-powered, 'scope-equipped smoke poles who have often wondered how they would make out in a target competition, will get a chance to try their irons in the big leagues this summer.

At the annual council meeting of the B.C. Rifle Association Sunday, a special match, at 600 and 1,000-yard ranges, was approved for the annual BCRA prize-shoot, starting May 31 at North Vancouver's Blair Range.

It is probable that there will also be a sporting-rifle competition in the Dominion matches at Ottawa this year.

Handgunners will be in for a busy week around Victoria from the time the South Vancouver Island Rangers stage their annual Vancouver Island pistol championships on Sunday, July 6.

The Victoria City Police revolver range at Thetis Lake will be the scene of the Victoria City meet July 9 and 10 and of the provincial revolver meet July 12 and 13.

In between the rifle and revolver meetings, shotgunners will be keeping barrels hot. The Canadian trapshooting championships are tentatively scheduled at Vancouver June 27 to July 1.

Brant appear to be showing up a bit earlier than they have for the past few years. Small bands have been seen off Sidney Island, Cherry Point and Tugwell Creek.

Terlep Signed As Rider Coach

REGINA (CP) — George Terlep, backfield coach with the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats last season, has signed a two-year contract as head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, it was announced today by president Sam Taylor of the Roughriders.

Terlep replaces Frank Filchok, released last fall after the Riders finished in last place. Terlep was chosen from about 20 applicants.

The 35-year-old Terlep is a former quarterback and has been coaching since 1949.

"I always wanted to be a head coach," he said, "and I think this is a real good challenge."

No comment was made by the Rider executive on the status of Jack Russell, assistant coach last year, who had also applied for the head coaching job. The executive has left it to Terlep to hire his own assistant or assistants, in accordance with what the budget will stand.

"If a third man is necessary and the budget will stand it, we may hire him," Taylor said. Terlep said he has "a couple" of persons in mind for the assistant coaching position.

LIVE IN REGINA

Married and the father of three children—two boys and a girl—Terlep said he will move his family from Elkhart, Ind., after the school term ends in June. He will live here the year round.

The new head coach will go on a player recruiting trip shortly. Terlep started his football as a tailback for Elkhart High School. In 1943 and 1944 he quarterbacked the University of Notre Dame under Frank Leahy. He turned professional with the Buffalo Bills of the old All-America Conference in 1948.

His coaching experience started in 1949 at the University of South Carolina where he was backfield coach. He took up the same job in succeeding years at Vanderbilt University, Marquette University, the University of Pennsylvania and Indiana University.

NEW! HI-RESOLUTION PICTURE TUBE
General Electric's new short neck picture tube does not use an ion trap, which means that focus over the whole viewing area is improved. This, plus the smaller spot size, gives sharper pictures than have previously been attainable.

NEW! TETRODE TUNER
This new development gives increased sensitivity over the previous cascade tuner, without increasing extraneous noise.

NEW! SOUND TRAP
Considerably improved adjacent channel sound trap further increases quality of performance by restricting interference from adjacent channels.

Long-range plans for the future development of the University of British Columbia have been revealed in the middle of the current drive which aims at raising $7,500,000 for capital development at the Point Grey campus.

The plan, which officials say will cost about $30,000,000 in the next 10 years calls for:

1. The elimination of all vehicular traffic from 120 acres at the heart of the university to create a "walking campus" and eliminate traffic problems.
2. The establishment of a perimeter road around the central 350 acres of the campus with numerous parking lots on the outskirts to accommodate an estimated 6,800 cars by 1966-67.

3. General expansion of the campus on undeveloped land to the south and construction of teaching facilities for an estimated student body of more than 15,000 and residences capable of housing 10 per cent of the student enrolment.

The plan to change the face of the campus has been broken down into several time periods. It concentrates on the period up to 1967 with only tentative plans laid beyond 1970.

The plan calls for large parking lots to be built around the campus, served by a perimeter road system by 1967. Faculty and service cars only will use the present road system at the heart of the university and the present main mall will be a pedestrian walkway.

Several new roads leading to the university will be needed by this time to allow an estimated 4,700 students and 2,100 faculty and staff cars access to the campus.

In the later or post-1970 phase of the university development plan, such well-known UBC landmarks as the stadium will be moved off the central "teaching campus."

The committee also has recommended that the area presently occupied by the stadium and adjacent playing fields should be held as a permanent reserve for future development.

The plan, in preparation for almost two years, was based on statistical information prepared by the Bureau of Statistics, the provincial department of education and data supplied by Canadian and American universities. The plan was developed by the university's architects,

Aerial Threat Holds Jet's Future

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes said Thursday the future of the supersonic CF-105 jet interceptor will depend entirely on the nature of the aerial threat to North America.

He was replying in the Commons to W. J. Henderson, Liberal defence critic, who said a Canadian Press story on the CF-105 threw doubt on future production of the aircraft being developed by Avro Aircraft Limited, Malton, Ont.

The annual movie contest of the Victoria Amateur Movie Club will be held in March, it was announced today by Frank De Gruchy, president.

Entry forms for the contest are available at photographic stores. These must be turned in before March 1.

Drinking Husband Gets 2 Months For Assaulting Saanich Policeman

NOW SHOWING BY POPULAR REQUEST "THE KING AND I"

Starting DEBORAH KERR, YUL BRYNNER

This magnificent film has been called "entertainment perfection" by all critics without exception. It is a picture which has everything one could desire for sheer entertainment — romance, comedy, drama, music, exotic color and beauty, and children. A picture that will hold and please all members of the family as it tells the story of the English governess who went out to the palace of the King of Siam to educate his children in the ways of Western civilization.

A tremendous production in the new Technicolor process known as "Cinemascope 55". To avoid disappointment, we urge you to see this picture from the beginning and as soon as possible. THREE DAYS ONLY. No increase in prices.

Two men were found guilty Thursday of assault charges in Saanich police court.

Samuel Graham, 537 Walter, was given two months in jail for assaulting Cons. John Stone, and Louie Haut, 920 Jasmine, was fined $50 for assaulting 13-year-old Jack Cote, 951 Jasmine.

Cons. Stone responded to a call from Mrs. Graham to attend her home because she was afraid her husband, who had been drinking, was going to hurt her.

The policeman said he struggled with Graham at the top of the front steps, both fell down to the ground and Cons. Stone said he was struck and kicked by the accused.

HANDCUFFED
The officer said he called for assistance and eventually he and juvenile officer Harry Adams succeeded in getting Graham into handcuffs.

He continued to be abusive and threatened both men as they drove him to the lockup.

Cyprien Cote, father of the boy in the second case, said Haut took his son by the throat, pushed him, kicked him and let the boy's bicycle fall on top of him. The boy was not hurt.

CHASED GIRL
Defence contended the Cote boy aggravated the assault by chasing Haut's three-year-old daughter, and swore at Haut and his wife.

Haut said he told police of the incident prior to the assault for which he was charged.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said: "The remedy is to take it to law—tell the police—not take matters into your own hands."

Worst Quake Shifts Mountains, Rivers

MOSCOW (Reuters)—One of the worst earthquakes ever recorded has rumpled the earth's surface in a remote part of Mongolia, splitting open huge chasms and toppling the mountain peaks in a primeval display of natural force.

Existing rivers were jerked into new courses, and completely new rivers—one eight miles long—were created.

The quake was heard around the world by listening scientists last Dec. 4. Thursday, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia published the first report of the findings of a scientific team that went into the area to observe its effects.

Western scientists believed the quake probably was bigger than the 1906 shock in San Francisco. It compared with a 1949 shock in Assam, India, in which 1,526 persons died.

Varsity Deans Clash Over College '3 Rs'

VANCOUVER (CP)—"People who make a lot of cracks at the high school system might consider that maybe some college teachers are so bad nobody could learn anything from them anyway," said Dean Neville Scarfe of the University of British Columbia college of education Thursday.

He was commenting on a remark made Tuesday by Dean W. A. Riddell of Regina college that most students entering college cannot read, write or reason.

"Outrageous," snapped Dean Scarfe. "Students couldn't get into college if they were as bad as that. I sometimes wonder when I hear such criticisms whether a college is teaching as well as it might."

The system of recommending high school students, scored by Dean Riddell, was supported by Dean Scarfe.

New Citizens Given Warning Against 'Bigoted Canadians'

AUBREY KENT
... "take no notice"

Twenty-two new Canadians, sworn in at Victoria Court-house Thursday, were warned against "bigoted Canadians who object to the way you speak their language."

"Do not take any notice of these ignorant people—they are not even good Canadians," said ex-alderman M. Aubrey Kent in an address of welcome after the new Canadians had received their citizenship certificates.

"It is not the way you speak that matters but how you conduct yourselves as citizens of your adopted land."

Mr. Kent said he was sure that, in changing their allegiance from the land of their birth to the land of their adoption, the new Canadians had engaged in "considerable soul-searching."

REAL TEST

"It is my earnest hope that you will never have to take sides against the land of your birth in any international dispute. But if you are that will be the test of your citizenship."

He added that many people from Europe were more conversant with Canada's parliamentary system than native-born Canadians.

"I have found that from experience."

Mr. Kent was spokesman for the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council and 11 other organizations who welcomed the new Canadians.

These were the city council, the British and Foreign Bible Society, University Women's Club, IODE, Lake Hill Women's Institute, Native Sons of B.C., Canadian Association of Social Workers, men's and women's Canadian Clubs, Canadian Folk Society, Vancouver Women's Club and the Colwood Women's Institute.

The new citizens were sworn in by Judge J. B. Clearhue and afterwards the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council gave a coffee party in the private dining room of the T. Eaton Co.

They are:
Johann Adikrichner, Johannes Arnold, Heintje Arnold, Toni Bendowski, Irma Brobyskov, Petrus Johannes De Haan, Maria Felter, Helena Hafenrichter.

Gayland Roland June, George Lohrmann, Karl Heinz Mende, Katharine Luise Mende, Wilhelm Prindl, Eleonore Prindl, Johann Schroeder, Giuseppe Simeoni, Petrus Van Dun.

Dirk Van der Meer, Johanna Van der Meer, Willem van Leusden, Anna Van Leusden, Ida Gerarda Weisse.

B.C. Control Sought Over Telephone Firm

CCF Leader Wants Ottawa To Give Up Jurisdiction

An attempt to have the B.C. Telephone Co. placed under provincial jurisdiction will be made by the CCF at the current legislative session.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan served notice today he will introduce a motion that the provincial government should ask Ottawa to have control of the company reverted to B.C.

INEFFECTIVE. Mr. Strachan said B.C. Telephone now is "subject only to limited and ineffective control" by the federal board of transport commissioners.

His motion said the province should have control of B.C. Telephone Co. so that rates and service could be regulated by the PUC.

$16,840 Loss On Two City Parks

Victoria's two enclosed parks were operated last year at a loss of $16,840 last year, city parks administrator W. H. Warren reported today.

He told a council committee rates charged for use of the parks are the lowest of any civic parks in Canada.

To break even, the rates would have to be increased 10 times, he said.

The Shrine Horse Show, one of 1957's best attended events at Macdonald Park, meant a loss to the city of $80, he gave as an example. Royal Athletic Park costs over the year were $12,387 while revenues were only $1,842. He pointed out both parks are maintaining low charges in order to promote organized sport in the area.

Parks committee chairman Ald. M. H. Mooney felt the loss was small when compared to the benefit to the community. The report was received and filed and no recommendation for increased fees will go to council.

At present fees are 10 per cent of the gross or a minimum of $10. Mr. Warren proposed the minimum charge should be $100.

F. J. Tate, Victoria West Old-Timer, Dies

Former official in the Crystal Spring Beverage Co., Frederick James Tate, 85, 528 Langford, died Thursday at his home.

Born in Hamilton, Ont., Mr. Tate came to Victoria in 1901. He was one of the oldest members of St. Saviour's Church, Victoria West.

A bachelor, he is survived by two sisters, Beatrice Tate, Port Coquitlam, and Annie Tate, Vancouver.

Rev. Douglas Kendall will officiate at a funeral service in St. Saviour's Church, Tuesday, at 3:15 p.m. Interment will be in the family plot at Ross Bay Cemetery.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—Would you please tell me who was the first mayor of Vancouver when it was called Gastown? Who was Gassy Jack?—P. B. and L. E.

A—There was no mayor of Vancouver when it was called Gastown. The first mayor was M. A. MacLean (1886-1887) following incorporation of the city in 1886, April 6. Population at that time was about 2,000. Gassy Jack's real name was Jack Deighton, who arrived at what is now Vancouver in 1868, and started in business with a barrel of whisky. Gastown got its name from the loquacity of Deighton. He operated a couple of places where hard-working settlers could quench their thirst.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

UBC Drive Here Gets $33,000

Advance gifts to the UBC Development Fund approximate $33,000 to date in the Victoria area, campaign officials announced today.

Hon. Robert W. Mayhew, chairman of this section, told the Times that "a unique and valuable contribution" in this list comprised a gift of 500 shares of stock from an anonymous Victorian, currently valued at $20 a share.

An anonymous industry contributed $10,000 to the total, made up of two yearly gifts of $5,000 apiece.

PAPERS GIVE. Both the Victoria Daily Times and The Daily Colonist have contributed $2,500, for a total press gift of $5,000.

First to be canvassed in the drive were officials of the campaign themselves.

Included in this category were Mr. Mayhew, $6,000; Judge Joseph B. Clearhue, president of Victoria College Council, $1,000; and alumni chairmen Lloyd G. McKenzie and J. S. Keate, $500 apiece.

Two hundred alumni have started the canvass of 1,100 graduates living in the Victoria area. First campaign totals are expected by honorary treasurer Gordon Holms next week.

OVER $4.7 MILLION

Over-all standing of the campaign—whose goal of $7.5 millions will be matched dollar-for-dollar by the provincial government—is in excess of $4.7 millions.

G. F. Dunn and Justin Harbord, heading up a personal canvass in Victoria, today expressed the hope that their job would be completed next week, and urged workers to complete their kits and return them to headquarters at 850 Gordon Street.

Meanwhile, unsolicited contributions from the public continue to arrive at the UBC office, including one from a retired couple with $100 who wrote that their daughter went to UBC 30 years ago but that they kept up their interest in the university through the graduate publication, The Chronicle.

Protests on Police Voting Registered

'Vote on Policy, Then Enforce It'

A move to block district police officers from voting at Juvenile Detention Home meetings, was asked today by city council's welfare committee.

The group also will recommend to council that a new system be adopted for municipal sharing of costs of operating the Cold Harbor Road juvenile home.

Council will be asked to oppose attempts to have the government drop the age limit for juveniles from 18 to 16, support an amalgamated district juvenile court, appointment of a probation officer staff, and a joint family court.

Ald. M. H. Mooney said he was not "... in agreement with the way the juvenile home is working." (In recent months the home has been centre of attention due to repeated break-outs and vandalism by older youths.)

He said he understood police juvenile officers attending the meetings with elected representatives were voting on policy matters.

"The police are voting on policy and then enforcing it." The committee motion called for voting powers to be "defined."

LEGISLATURE LILY GUILD LAMPOONED

Much of the talk in the legislative corridors on opening day Thursday was about the centennial year decorations on the front of the main buildings.

Almost all of it was unfavorable.

Adjectives such as "gaudy," "cheap" and "garish" were heard.

"The standards of decoration used are of a standard you would expect at the entrance to a carnival side show," commented Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

PTAs Protest Treatment Cuts

The British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation has lodged a "strong" protest with the provincial health department opposing a proposed 5 per cent cut in services in fields of mental health, rehabilitation and juvenile crime treatment centres.

George Black, Ex-Yukon MP, Here With Bride

George Black, 85, who represented the Yukon in the House of Commons for many years and was known throughout the Commonwealth as the MP from the North Pole, is in Victoria today with his bride of 24 hours.

She is the former Sadie King, 65, sister of the late Mickey O'Rourke, V.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Black are staying at the Empress Hotel until Tuesday.

They were married at a quiet, unpublicized ceremony in Vancouver Thursday.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

A House Full of Echoes

The opening of the House always provides an interesting study of provincial manners and mores, the tribal customs of our society.

In days past, this was an event of great swirl and elan.

It was always fun to see our hard-rock miners and lumberjacks of yesteryear, splendidly attired in cut-aways and grey, toppers, their stylish ladies on their arms. It was exciting to see, here compressed in one small marble chamber, the power of our province—the men who made our lumber, marketed our fish, harnessed our rivers, banked our money and installed our long-distance lines; each distinguished, smiling and courtly, and intimate with the horny-handed sons of toil who "governed" them.

Yesterday, only the formal trappings of this spectacle remained. There was a splash of color in the uniforms. The guns boomed. The mace, ancient symbol of our freedom, was in its proper place. Mr. Speaker turned up with a hat that fitted him, and performed nobly. His Honor was a splendidly genial figure in his cocked hat, white gloves and braid, and conducted the whole business as the Queen would command.

But in the wings there was a subtle difference. The cast of supporting players has changed. The sense of electricity, the style and pace of past years, was missing.

The moults of industry, with one or two exceptions, were absent. In their place sent executive assistants, vice-presidents and public relations men. The cosmopolitan gentlemen of the consulates and the gay social blades were not to be seen.

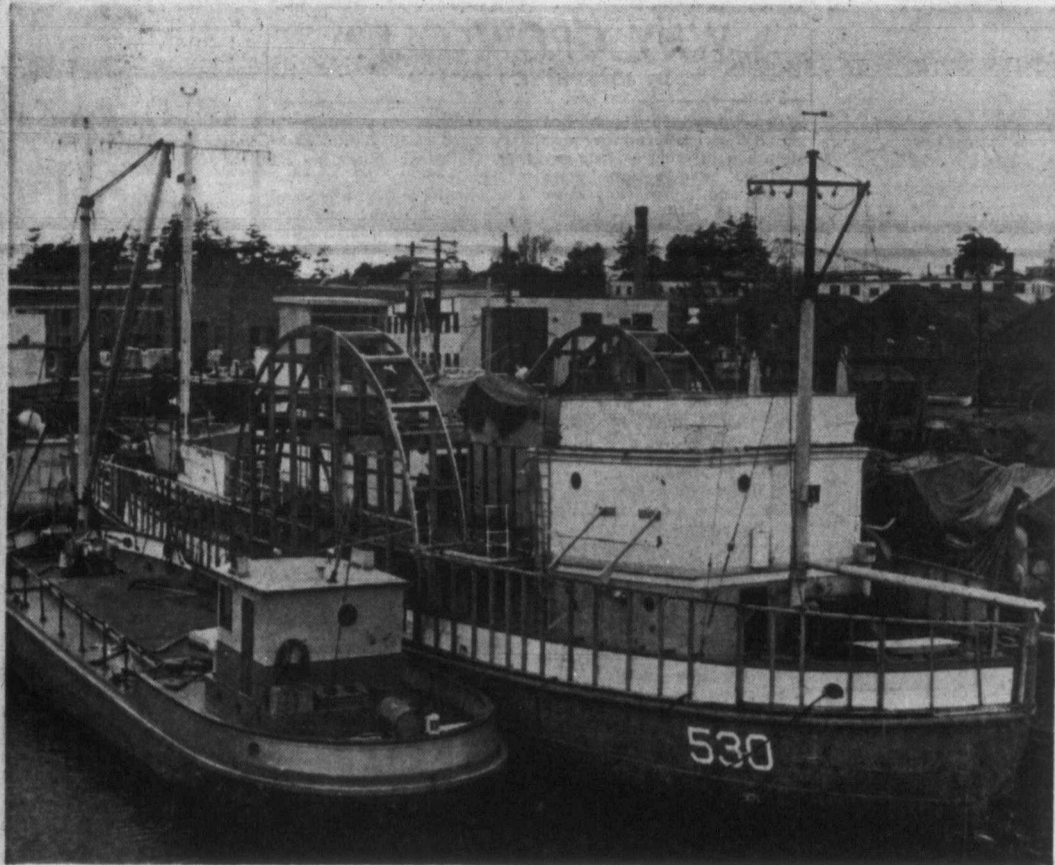

In their stalls were the limpets of politics; the defeated candidates; the campaign managers, the boys who raise the money and those who seek it, the "advisers," the in-laws, the salesmen, the party heaters. One of the gentlemen, if that is the correct word, was tastefully attired in a checkered sports shirt, sans tie.

Even "The Great Hat Sweep-

stakes," beloved of the social writers, was a disappointment. Five memorable years ago a Vancouver doctor's wife turned up, forsooth, in a head-piece which featured a golf ball rampant on a yard of green grass.

The House was awed and delighted by this outrageous conceit. There was in the corridors that day a palpable masculine urge to grab the nearest No. 7 Iron and lob the ball into the Inner Harbor.

The one courageous confection in the House Thursday belonged to a handsome young woman who appeared to have taken a funnel, glued it all over with feathers, and plopped it on her head, spout up. Who was she? We shall never know. She was an ornament from the past, in a House full of rustling echoes.

Sea Cadets To Sail Down Under

One sea cadet officer and 24 Royal Canadian Sea Cadets will be embarked in the training cruiser HMCS Ontario when she leaves Esquimalt Feb. 24 on her second major cruise of the year.

The Navy League of Canada, sponsor of the Sea Cadet program, announced today that nine of the cadets will be from B.C., six from Alberta, three from Saskatchewan, four from Manitoba and two from Ontario.

Ports of call for the cruise, which will end May 5, have not been set, but it is believed the Ontario will make port as far away as Australia.

It will be the second Pacific cruise for sea cadets this year. At present 26 are embarked in five ships of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, bound for the Far East.

The Ontario is also away at present, in California and Mexico waters, returning Feb. 10.

Unemployment On Decline In Victoria

Unemployment in Victoria has passed its peak and is slowly on the decline, officials of the National Employment Service office here reported today.

NES said the number of jobless this week totalled 5,819 as compared with 5,966 a week ago ... a decrease of 147.

Its first time in six months that the unemployment figure has decreased.

"There are now 88 less men and 59 fewer women registered for employment with the local office," NES officials said. "The peak of unemployment appears to have been reached and from now on there is expected to be a steady decline in the number of jobless persons in the area."

NES officials said renewed activity in the construction and lumbering industry is starting to provide more people with jobs.

3-Month Term For 'Clumsy' Bad Cheque Try

A "clumsy" attempt to pass a forged cheque resulted in a three-month jail sentence for Thomas Godfrey, 975 Fairfield, when he appeared today in city police court.

Godfrey attempted to pass the cheque at a local grocery store last Friday. He was turned over to police by the store owner.

Defence counsel Alan Bigelow asked for a moderate sentence. Godfrey, he said, "went to a store where they knew him ... it looks almost like a psychological wish to get caught."

The "attempt and ... whole action was clumsy," Magistrate H. C. Hall told the accused, "the logical result of your manner of life."

"It seems to me you are really an alcoholic and haven't faced up to that fact."

Divorces were granted in Victoria divorce court Thursday to: Annie Clinton Baddeley, 608 St. Patrick Street, Victoria, from William Clinton Baddeley of Victoria, whom she married here in 1931.

Ivah Laverne Read, RR2, Victoria, from Frederick Richard Read of Victoria. Married here 1939.

Arthur William Pankhurst, 515 Admirals Road, Esquimalt, from Margaret Helen Pankhurst of Campbellton, B.C. Married, Victoria, 1940.

MONTE ROBERTS

OUR VERY OWN GARDENING GUIDE (What to do when the weather is mild in January edition.)

The current spell of overly-mild mid-winter weather poses a difficult problem for the conscientious gardener. Especially the conscientious gardener who conscientiously wishes to avoid gardening.

At this time of the year, it is only reasonable to expect a blessed blanket of snow to cover the garden, hiding the hose one forgot to put away last spring and the pile of tomato stakes leaning untidily against the compost heap.

Under such circumstances, with the eyesores well hidden, no conscientious gardener could be expected to be so conscientious as to blunder about outside in his overshoes, tidying up.

But this year, with temperatures warm and the only precipitation in the form of rain, a gardener tends to find himself being pushed outdoors by his wife, armed with rake and shovel. (The gardener, not the wife. The wife is usually armed only with a fund of sarcastic remarks.)

What makes it worse is, the conscientious gardener is not only faced with tidying up at this most unseasonal season, all around him he finds things growing.

Buds are budding, grass is grassing, daffodil shoots are shooting, and all nature cries for a shave and haircut.

How is the conscientious gardener to avoid lavishing care, attention, and his aching back on these growing things which are growing in mid-winter?

There is little use in screaming at them: "Go back, you stupid fools. It's too early."

I have given this matter a great deal of thought, and believe I have arrived at a solution.

It is based on the method used by fruit growers in sunny California when sunny California isn't sunny, but is frosty. The fruit growers set fire to hundreds of smudge pots, thus creating artificial heat.

For the conscientious gardeners in this balmy mid-winter wonderland, a simple twist is all that's needed. Namely, artificial cold.

My recommendation for this time of the year is, ice packs applied to the appropriate areas of budding buds, grassing grass, and shooting daffodil shoots.

This, I admit, may take a little time and trouble, not to mention a great many ice cubes.

But it's a lot better than gardening, as any conscientious gardener knows.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Four men were fined $25 and $250 court costs each in city court today for failing to file 1956 income tax returns. They were William Dudley, 918 Government; Robert O. Paterson, 544 Simcoe; Karl Fagerland, 90 Dallas; and Peter Lee, 614 Fingard. All pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Inga Parsons, 33, of 1528 Elford, was treated for head and leg cuts at Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday afternoon following a traffic accident at the corner of Fernwood and Pandora. Mrs. Parsons was passenger in a car being driven west on Pandora by Arnold Larsen, 1528 Elford, which was in collision with another car driven south on Fernwood by Nick Lunan, 34 Helmecken.

A canvas bag containing $25 in cash was stolen from the office of Victoria City Service, 709 Cormorant, overnight, city police said today. Entrance was gained by smash-in glass on the office door to release the catch.

Thieves also broke into Stewart and Hudson Ltd., 405 Gorge, overnight. A brace and bit was used to break the padlock on the south door. Nothing was missing, police said.

Arthur Hugh Murphy, 2225 Patricia Bay, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty in Saanich police court Thursday of driving while impaired.

He was remanded to next Thursday for a probation report and consideration of driver's licence suspension.

Plans for a provincial PTA convention here in April will be discussed at a meeting of Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council in North Ward School tonight at 8.

Victoria alderman G. I. Edgelow was returned to office Thursday as chairman of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee. Vice-chairman are Esquimalt councillor G. K. Sammon, Bart Carson and Saanich councillor C. M. Nelles. Oak Bay councillor C. H. G. Mann was re-elected treasurer.

The committee has drawn plans for hanging of green and gold bunting along the exterior of City Hall during summer ceremonies.

Victoria Art Gallery curator Collin Graham was hospitalized Thursday for a stomach condition.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital today reported his condition as "good."

Alex R. Seabrook pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge in city police court today and was sentenced to 15 days in jail.

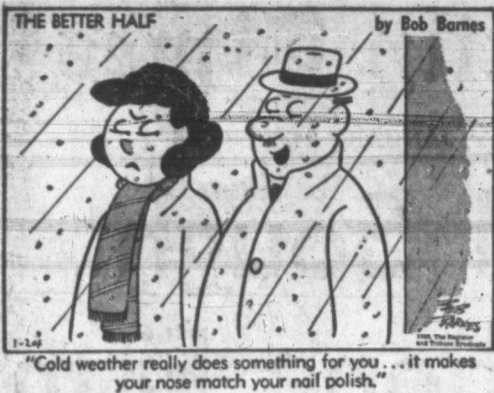

Friends of the Victoria Public Library will hold their annual meeting in the music room, Wednesday, Jan. 29, at 8 p.m. Following a business session, Rodney Poisson will speak on poetry, chiefly modern. The talk will be illustrated with readings and recordings. Members may bring friends.

The Junior Branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will make a field trip to the Langford fire lookout Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Members will meet at the Monterey Restaurant parking lot.

A discussion on methods to remedy the present unemployment situation will be held at a meeting of the Victoria Humanist Fellowship Sunday at 8 p.m. in the hall at 721 Courtney Street.

The discussion will be opened by George F. Stirling.

SHOPPING GUIDE

What Tops Menu Today? For Economy, It's Fish!

By PENNY SAVER

To the bottom of the sea, to see what's fishing! I should say cooking, because to eat and enjoy the fish I found today, it would be wise to cook it!

I hope you like sole, because that's what is on the dinner menu for Saturday night.

With fresh sole at 17 cents a pound, dinner will be inexpensive, but you can bet your boots it will be good! How shall we prepare the fish? Well, here's my idea: Using thin fillets or slices of sole, split pieces into halves. Wash the fish and wipe with a clean wet cloth. Place the sole face down on a well-greased broiler pan; sprinkle with salt, pepper and lemon juice; brush with melted butter. Place two inches away from heat. Broil 10 to 15 minutes until nicely browned. When it is done, it will flake easily.

That's all there is to it! Serve with lemon or parsley butter and m-m-m!

There's nothing, simply nothing like a good bowl of hot clam chowder in the middle of the day. Nothing quite so nutritious either! If you and your family like clams, why not splurge a little and prepare a big kettle of homemade clam chowder? With clams at 25 cents a pound, you could make a huge pot of chowder that would feed the hungriest of families!

Phone me and find out where you can buy these fresh delicious clams... now!

Smoked salted haddock is a special this weekend, with a low price tag of 38 cents a pound. Here's a scrumptious meal fit for a king... and easy to prepare! It's baked finnan haddock. Cut one and a half pounds of haddock into serving pieces and place in a greased baking dish. Add one and a half cups of milk and three tablespoons of butter; sprinkle with a quarter teaspoon of paprika. Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees for about 25 minutes.

There you have a meal for six people, costing little more than 60 cents!

Here I am changing the subject again! You would, too, if you knew about the latest decrease in egg prices. At one shop, I found that the wise shopper could buy a dozen large size eggs for 50 cents! Then in another there were eggs sell-

Donate Milk For Children

The regular meeting of the Dr. O. M. Jones Chapter, IODE, was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Ellis, 1456 Beach Drive recently. Mrs. J. C. McDonald presided.

A letter of thanks was received from Miss Janet Prentiss, nursing supervisor, for the $150 to be used for the purchase of milk for undernourished children.

A kind donation for the Milk Fund was received from Mrs. O. M. Jones. An interesting report of the Dr. A. M. Jones Chapter, 6th annual meeting, held in February 1925, was read, the late Mrs. Ivel being in the chair at that time.

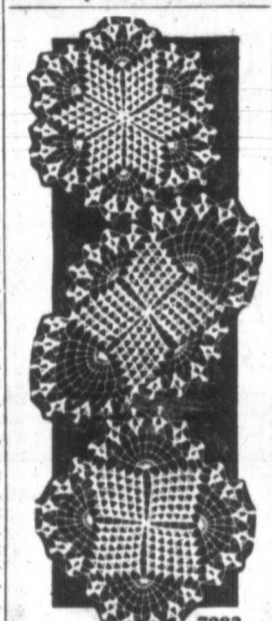

Mrs. H. O'Reilly placed flowers in the DVA hospital. Mrs. C. Riach read the provincial report on Citizenship and Immigration. Tentative arrangements were discussed as to the chapter's Easter Bonnet tea.

Mrs. L. Duncan was nominated as convener of the nominating committee, assisted by Mrs. C. Riach and Mrs. Hitchman.

The 40th annual luncheon of the Dr. O. M. Jones Chapter, will be held in the Blue Room, Tuesday, Feb. 11, at 12.30 p.m.

CAC Meeting

Mrs. H. S. Clark will speak on textiles at a meeting of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Monday, at 2 p.m. in the music room of the Public Library. Following her talk there will be a panel discussion on hoisery and a film on shoes.

TRAINING FOR PILOT

Although she is only 19 and weighs 117 pounds, Hazel Brooks of Montreal is close to becoming one of Canada's youngest women commercial pilots. Unless bad weather or unusual circumstances interfere she will receive her rating in March. She became interested in aircraft through a brother who built models. At 18 she joined the Montreal Flying Club and got her private pilot rating. The club's chief instructor calls her "an exceptional pilot... just a natural, instinctively good pilot." (CP Photo.)

Colfax Rebekah Lodge Installed New Officers

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Two weeks ago I published my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon in order to help my feminine readers lose extra pounds and improve any other defects in beauty they may have. They can do wonders on this eight-week plan.

This week I have been bringing help to the men who read this column. Since thousands of them are beginning my 12-day Tubby Hubby Reducing Diet, I will devote my Friday question box to them today.

Q.—"Should a man cut his daily calorie intake as low as his wife does? My wife is following your 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon and keeps her intake to a thousand to 1,200 calories a day. Is this too low for me?"

A.—Yes! Due to man's greater stature he requires more food than women even when he is reducing. My Tubby Hubby Diet gives you around 1,600 calories a day. If you wish to count your calories, hold it to that or a bit more.

Q.—"My wife is following your reducing diet and I wish to lose also but we can't have separate menus. What do we do about that?"

A.—It is no problem at all. Count your calories separately but the menus can be the same. You can take larger helpings. For instance, while your wife eats one egg, you are allowed two. She has one piece of toast, you have two. She has one slice of meat, you two, and so forth.

Q.—"I am a middle-aged man in good health. I know that I have neglected myself. I am going to lose some weight. Is it safe for me to begin sports at my age?"

A.—There are certain sports which can be enjoyed at any age. Two of the best are golf and swimming. Of course walking is fine exercise for any age. Tennis and many other sports are considered too strenuous to start after early youth. However, individuals differ greatly in their capacity for exercise. It is essential to have a physical check-up and follow your doctor's advice in this matter. Many men make the mistake of leading a sedentary life for years and then dashing out and overdoing on the golf course. This is bad for health and even dangerous. Your doctor will tell you how much to begin with.

If any of the men who read this column would like to lose from seven to 12 pounds in 12 days' time (or any of their wives would like to have them do so), send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my Tubby Hubby Diet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Entering the marble hallways of the Parliament Buildings Thursday, British Columbia's first lady, Mrs. Frank MacKenzie Ross, arrives to attend the opening of the Legislature. Her spring-like imported model hat of stiffened tulle, showing an all-over design of chenille dots, complemented an ensemble of deep brown velvet and point d'aiguille lace, worn with sable furs.

Luncheon—Twenty-two members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Capital City Yacht Club met for a luncheon meeting Tuesday in Eaton's dining room. Plans were discussed for the annual ladies' supper in April and the predicted log race in June. Officers for 1958 are Mrs. Frank Logan, president; Mrs. P. Salmon, vice-president; Mrs. Percy Pitt, secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. E. H. Henshall, past president. Mrs. Maurice Glover was welcomed as a new member.

More than 2,000 guests passed through receiving lines at the Premier's reception in the Empress Hotel following the formal Legislature opening, expecting to shake hands with Mr. Bennett and his wife. But the Premier, anticipating a record crowd, arranged a re-routing of guests to two additional lines manned by his ministers, one at the conservatory entrance, the other to the left of the Premier's main receiving line in the flower-decked Palm Room just outside the ballroom. Here, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mrs. Bennett greet Mrs. R. G. McKee, left, and Mrs. Gordon Root.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Dinner for Major-General

A dinner was held Thursday evening in the officers' mess of First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry at Work Point Barracks to honor Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, CB, CBE, DSO, general officer commanding Western Command. Also a special guest at the dinner was Brig. J. W. Bishop, OBE, area commander of the British Columbia Area.

Banquet in Seattle

Dr. and Mrs. R. J. Wride flew to Seattle last Tuesday where they were guests at a banquet honoring Mr. Gordon Scott who had been voted Seattle's favorite citizen. The Wrides returned to the city on Wednesday.

Weekending Here

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Winther of Vancouver with their baby daughter, will spend the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Paddy Walton at their home on Mayfair Drive. This Sunday in St. Luke's Church Mr. Winther will stand as godfather for Mr. and Mrs. Walton's son, Tommy, and Mrs. Walton will be godmother at the christening of the Winther's baby daughter, Lisa. Miss Ruth Johnson will be godmother for Tommy and Mr. Terry Gower, godfather to Lisa. Officiating at the double ceremony will be Rev. T. D. B. Ragg.

Off to Vancouver

Leaving tonight for a weekend in Vancouver visiting their friends at University of British Columbia, are the Misses Sharon Plowes and Barbara Geddes. While there they will stay with Miss Jill Diespecker who is attending UBC and is of this city.

A Spring Shower

A May pole with gifts attached to the ends of the colorful streamers added a "bit of spring" to the recent shower in honor of Miss Susan Speck at the home of Mrs. Kenneth W. Brown on Roslyn Road. Miss Pat Brown was co-hostess. A corsage of red roses was presented to the bride-elect, and her mother, Mrs. John B. Speck, received a corsage of pink and white carnations. Guests included Mrs. L. Pope, Mrs. Clyde Savage and the Misses Carol

A Farewell Tea

A farewell tea was held recently in honor of Mrs. H. D. Gibb, at the home of Mrs. B. B. Tingley on Weald Road. Mrs. Gibb is leaving shortly to make her home in Vancouver. A bowl of pink tulips flanked by pink candles centred the refreshment table at which Mrs. C. A. Gibbard presided. Daughters of two of the guests, Susan Denny and Tarel Tingley, served. Guests were members of Chapter K, PEO Sisterhood.

To Convention

Delegates from Victoria to the Liberal Convention in Vancouver this weekend include Mrs. J. T. Jones, Mrs. J. Nelson, Mr. Sidney Smith and Mr. J. A. McLellan.

Sunday Tea

Bowls of yellow chrysanthemums will decorate the Burdick Avenue home of Mrs. A. Salter on Sunday afternoon, when she entertains at the tea hour. The tea will be held in honor of the Cosmopolis, who, with their many friends, made such a success of a recent project "Toys for Tots." In the receiving line will be Mrs. Salter, Mrs. N. Buxton and Mrs. J. Greave. The lace cloth covered refreshment table will be centred with a large turquoise bowl of pink chrysanthemums and carnations. Presiding at the tea urns will be Mrs. E. Harper, Mrs. D. Durrant, Mrs. M. Campbell and Mrs. J. Marshall.

Visitor

Mrs. S. J. Bowman is a visitor in the city from West Vancouver, the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. R. H. McDougall, "Glamis Manor," Oak Bay Avenue.

Tables laden with afternoon-size sandwiches, olives and dainty iced cakes took up almost as much space as the guests which crowded into the ballroom for tea. Here Mrs. E. A.

Need More Women in Accounting

CALGARY (CP)—Eileen Lundie, first woman to become a chartered accountant in Calgary, says she is not too happy about being the only woman in a predominantly masculine field.

Miss Lundie received her degree recently when the Alberta Institute of Chartered Accountants held its annual presentation of certificates.

"Not that I don't like being an accountant," she said. "I love the work. But I've been dying for some female company. You have no idea how much you tire of listening to nothing but male conversation.

"Sometimes I'm just dying to have a girl at the next desk who will gossip about fashions and the latest hair styles."

How did she happen to choose commerce for a career?

Miss Lundie admitted she was rather good at mathematics when she was in school at Lacombe, Alta. In fact, she made 100 per cent in her senior matriculation trigonometry examination paper.

"I loved math and science," she added. "When I graduated a local firm of accountants asked if I would be interested in articling with them."

Miss Lundie explained that becoming a chartered accountant is one way of obtaining a degree without going to university.

"There are two ways of becoming a chartered accountant. You can take a three-year course at university and then article for two years or you can go straight into an office and article for five years, writing three different sets of examinations."

GAGLARDI JUST ON 'VISIT' FOR SESSION?

Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi is by all odds B.C.'s most peripatetic cabinet minister.

Mr. Gagliardi reported travelling expenses of $3,043 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

Next in line, well behind, was Labor Minister Lyle Wicks with $3,093. Premier Bennett had the third highest total—$2,905.

The figures are contained in the public accounts tabled at the opening session of the legislature Thursday.

FLOWERY NOTE STARTS OFF HOUSE SESSION

The government started its legislative program for the current session on a flowery note Thursday.

Bill No. 1, traditionally presented on opening day to show that the peoples' business comes first, is an act to protect the wild trillium plant.

When the bill becomes law, the trillium will be afforded the same protection as rhododendron and dogwood.

$1.3 Million Net Income For PGE

A net income of $1,304,728 for the Pacific Great Eastern Railroad in the year ended Dec. 31, 1956, is reported in the public accounts tabled in the legislature Thursday.

The railroad reported operating revenue of $8,810,326 during 1956. Assets in road and equipment were listed at $108,607,475.

What All MOTHERS should know about LANOLIN

When your little one's chest is all tickled up with feverish cold and congestion, remember this about lanolin:

1. Lanolin is a natural oil. It comes from the soft, downy wool of sheep.
2. Because it is a natural oil, lanolin is easily absorbed. It penetrates deeply into the skin.
3. Lanolin is gentle and soothing to a tender child's skin.
4. Specially important to mothers, gentle lanolin is in the soothing, penetrating base of Buckley's highly medicated JACK and JILL RUB for children's chest colds. That's why this new rub with lanolin is so highly praised by mothers. Get JACK and JILL RUB now. Only 85c.

Greater Effort Needed to Guide Troubled Youths

A greater community effort to get at the roots of the juvenile delinquency problem has been urged by Warden Hugh Christie of Oakalla Prison Farm.

In the annual report of the provincial inspector of jails tabled in the legislature Thursday, Warden Christie reported there were 10,000 admissions to Oakalla in the year ended March 31, 1957, an increase of 3,000 over the previous year.

Said Warden Christie: "The increase was made up partly from the growing number of teenagers who, for lack of adequate alternatives to delinquency and the deficiency of preventive services in the community, are not being dealt with in time to avoid the necessity of sending them to prison."

"The human and financial loss involved in not having adequate preventive services is made more apparent when we realize that a large majority of these youngsters are physically and mentally above the average; the major defect in their development being the absence of proper training in their homes or an adequate substitute in the form of appropriate community resources so necessary in the city of today."

SPECIAL UNIT
Warden Christie also recommended in his report that a special unit be constructed to deal with inmates who have mental problems.

He reported an increasing number of inmates at Oakalla who are "not normally associated with a prison" and who have "intense psychiatric problems necessitating special care."

E. G. B. Stevens, provincial inspector of jails, said facilities for admission, observation and classification of prisoners at Oakalla are "very inadequate."

Mr. Stevens said these services need particularly to be improved for the selection of inmates to go to the new Hancay Correctional Institution.

The inspector also urged that the provincial probation service be expanded.

'Ted' Field, Famed Bush Flier, Dead

VANCOUVER (CP)—Edward Roy Robert Field, known only as Ted Field in flying circles, died here Thursday of a heart attack.

Field, 51, was manager of Canadian Pacific Airline's flight operations.

But he hadn't always been behind a desk in an office, in one of the world's largest airlines. Grant McConachie, president of CPA, talked about Ted late Thursday.

"He was a great adventurer," said McConachie. "In 1933, he operated his private charter service out of Edmonton."

"They thought there was gold up near Great Slave Lake and he took many prospectors up there in his favorite Fairchild aircraft. He had no radio, just good flying sense."

The quiet-spoken man—who was quite deaf—was co-pilot with McConachie at the stick on the first air mail flight from Edmonton to Whitehorse in the Yukon.

"They were sure 'glad to see that plane,'" said McConachie. "It took a boat six or seven days previously to get up into the Yukon. On that day in 1937 we took only a day."

Average Age 14½ At Brannan Lake
Average age of offenders sentenced to the Brannan Lake boys' school last year was 14½, according to a report tabled in the legislature Thursday.

Of the 262 admissions, all but 40 were first offenders and 56 boys were committed on their first appearance in court.

Blast Kills Nine
BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Nine persons were killed when a factory exploded and burned in suburban Vicente Lopez Thursday. The factory made glass frames. A short in an electric heater caused the explosion.

THE FORGOTTEN FEW

Social Assistance 'Crutch' Fine But Not Like Real Leg

(To 765 Victorians on social assistance, life has become grim existence. They are the lowest in the city's social order. To them, a pensioner seems well-to-do. In many ways he is, for pensioners receive up to $25 more each month than an unemployed man or woman. City welfare officials feel it is high time the situation was rectified. Their reasons will be given in this series, along with reports of some Victorians who live an "assistance existence.")

BY DINAH KERR
A disabled father of six says social assistance is "like crutches—you can't expect them to be as good as a leg."

Social assistance is a crutch Mr. F. has been leaning on steadily for five years. He'll never be able to throw it away and walk alone.

Mr. F.'s troubles began in 1944 when he was operated on for a hernia. One leg was affected and continued to swell after the operation. He drew workmen's compensation for a year.

MONEY TROUBLES
Part-time jobs followed and in their wake came intense financial worries. Mr. F. developed ulcers and had part of his stomach removed in June of 1956.

Since then, he has not been able to work as a laborer and bad eyesight forbids office work.

At 55, he is resigned to helping around the house and waiting for a monthly cheque from the city health and welfare department.

The cheque of $156 is supplemented by $42 family allowance and $15 that Mrs. F. earns for laundering the altar linen of a local Catholic church.

From this they pay $105 for rent, coal, light, water, fuel, milk and "miscellaneous" items like toothpaste, bandages and shoe soles.

The balance of $107 goes for meat and groceries to feed Mr. and Mrs. F. and their children aged five, seven, 10, 12, 14 and 15.

CHEAP CUTS

Their meals consists of porridge and milk in the morning, soup at lunch and potatoes with beans, spaghetti or eggs at night. Cheap cuts of meat are served once a week for Sunday dinner.

Mrs. F. bakes five loaves of bread a day and the couple cans "everything but the worms" in their large garden.

All their clothes are hand-me-downs from the St. Vincente De Paul Society or the Salvation Army.

They buy shoes, "but every time we get a pair we feel it for three months," Mr. F. said.

REPAIRS OWN SHOES

To save money he buys leather soles and repairs the shoes himself.

Their only entertainment is to watch television at a friend's house. The last time the F's went to a movie was when someone gave them free tickets. Before then they hadn't seen one in three years.

Mrs. F. is the family barber and hairdresser, "a very sharp buyer," her husband said.

"We stretch our money just as far as we can. My wife will walk a mile for a bargain."

Despite their scrimping, the family lives from month to month.

"Social assistance is not a way of life," Mr. F. said. "It's just assistance until something comes along."

"Someday, somehow I might get a break."

In the meantime, he said, "our problem is difficult but we have the advantages of a garden, a barber, a shoemaker, a handyman of sorts and no family troubles of any kind."

Their overwhelming disadvantage is no money and no job prospects.

"But I never think of tomorrow," Mr. F. said. "I can't afford to worry."

Welfare officials are doing Mr. F.'s worrying for him. They're thinking of today—a day when the cost of living for eight persons hovers high above a monthly income of $213.

Tomorrow may be even worse.

20,000 Increase In Student Force

Enrollment in B.C. schools jumped 20,000 to a total of 260,069 in the 1956-57 school year.

Annual report of the department of education tabled in the legislature Thursday showed there were 9,474 teachers employed in 102 school districts throughout the province.

Government expenditures on education in the year was $43,989,524, while the total amount spent on public schools was $77,653,192.

Fires Killed 31 Children

Fires take a grim toll of lives in British Columbia.

The annual fire marshal's report tabled in the legislature Thursday shows that 85 persons were burned to death in the province during 1956, including 31 children.

Property loss from fires jumped 41 per cent from $10,889,620 in 1955 to $15,348,745 in 1956.

Sales Tax Third Of B.C. Revenue

The 5 per cent sales tax provides almost one-third of the provincial government's total revenues.

Public accounts for the year ended last March 31 tabled in the legislature Thursday show sales tax collections amounted to a record $85,132,489. Total revenues of all kinds were $270,783,792.

The sales tax brought in $16,825,767 more in the 1956-57 fiscal year than in the previous fiscal year.

Other major revenue sources in 1956-57:

Gasoline tax, $24,067,015.
Motor-vehicle licences, $13,390,825.

Timber sales, $28,056,599.

Liquor Control Board, $25,079,690.

The government received $35,730,440 from Ottawa under the federal-provincial tax-rental agreement.

ROTARY TALK

Young 'Tycoons' Show Profit In Vancouver

The operation and achievement of a business program run by Vancouver high school students was described to Rotary members Thursday by Dr. H. L. Purdy, executive vice-president of B.C. Electric Company.

The three-year-old "Junior Achievements Program" consists of the formation, financing, and operation of small businesses by selected students during the school year.

"The scheme," Dr. Purdy said, "has been likened to a 4-H program transferred from agricultural to industrial fields, the purpose of which is to let high school youngsters actually operate their own businesses for a short time."

50c SHARES

"About 400 boys and girls are selected from various high schools," he said, "and divided into groups of 16 to 18."

Each group then incorporates itself into a company and sells stock at 50c a share.

They then devote one night a week to the manufacture and marketing of the goods which usually consist of small articles such as lamps, toys and other handicrafts.

PROFITS

At the end of the year each company prepares an annual report and disburse profits, which nine out of ten make, either in the form of dividends to the original investors or to a special scholarship fund.

"The change in attitude of the youngsters before and after the program is tremendous," said Dr. Purdy. "They have learned some of the rigors of marketing and, perhaps more important, the value of working together."

Similar groups have been organized, he said, in Windsor, Ont., and in over 100 cities across the U.S.

Unitarians Ask Clothing For Layettes

Clothing to complete 25,000 layettes for Arab refugee babies is being sought here by the Liberal Religious Fellowship (Unitarian) on behalf of the Unitarian Services Committee, a volunteer war relief organization.

Articles of clothing, new or used, may be left at the observation ward of Royal Jubilee Hospital, H. V. O'Reilly, vice-chairman of the fellowship, said today.

Each layette will consist of four diapers, two nightgowns, two shirts, two vests, one cake of laundry soap, one binder, four safety pins and one crib blanket. The blankets have been purchased by the USC.

The layettes will be shipped from Victoria at the end of March.

The religious fellowship also is collecting pullovers for children, aged three to 15, in Korea. For greatest possible warmth, they should be long-sleeved and high-necked. Donations of pullovers may also be left at the Jubilee observation ward.

COCKY WITNESS CINCHES CASE

ALICE, Tex. (AP) — A rooster was entered in evidence Wednesday in the assault trial of Edward Cox, 25.

The defence told the court that the rooster, fitted with razor-sharp gaffs, entered a free-for-all fight and inflicted the injuries Cox was accused of causing. Judge Wash Storm found Cox guilty and fined him $25 and costs.

Big Game Hunter Morden Dies at 72

CHAPPAQUA, N.Y. (AP) — Lt.-Col. William James Morden, 72, explorer and big-game hunter, died Thursday night at his home near here.

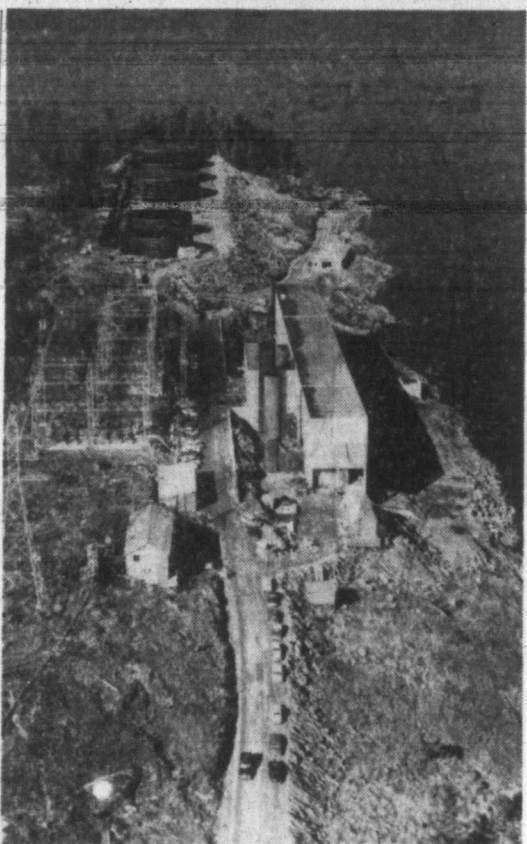

Morden led at least six major expeditions to Asia, Africa and Canada during the last 35 years, hunting such diverse game as Marco Polo sheep in Mongolia, Siberian tiger in Russian, and Aardvark in Africa.

Navy Man Acquitted In Runway Collision

HALIFAX (CP) — A navy court martial has acquitted Chief Petty Officer Gerald D. Mooney of Dartmouth, N.S., of negligence in the runway collision of two aircraft at Shearwater Naval Air Station last August.

Both pilots died in the crash. Mooney was control man in the airport tower at the time of the collision. He is now serving on the aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

100,000 HORSEPOWER

New Power Plant Ready by Summer

Georgia Generating Station of the B.C. Power Commission at Bare Point, opposite Chemainus, likely will be in operation by summer of this year, according to power commission officials.

Boasting four oil-fired gas turbines driving generators that will develop a total of 100,000 horsepower, it will be the largest plant of its type in the world when completed. Cost will be over $13,500,000.

First of the four units is "operational," and the second is completed and undergoing tests by manufacturers. Third and fourth turbine generators will be in place shortly.

IN 10 MINUTES

The plant will be used to augment the commission's hydro system on Vancouver Island at times of peak load. It is expected that the plant can start producing power 10 minutes after notification, and reach full production in less than 20 minutes.

Bunker C oil fuel delivered by tankers is stored at the site, then given extensive treatment for removal of impurities before going through high-speed turbines. Treated fuel, ready for instant use, is stored in large tanks close to the plant.

No Trouble By Copyright On Emblem

B.C. Centennial Committee officials said Thursday they are not too concerned that someone has taken out a copyright on the official Centennial emblem.

Attorney-General Bonner has the matter "under control," said chairman L. J. Wallace.

It was learned that an Art Parker of Vancouver took out the copyright last Nov. 16. None has been issued to the Centennial Committee.

Mr. Wallace said the emblem is protected by provincial statute, through a bill passed in 1956.

On top of that, a large part of the emblem is the provincial coat-of-arms, which can't be used without special permission, which the Centennial committee obtained.

JET PIONEERS

Work on centrifugal-type jet engines began in Britain as early as 1930.

Jobless Reduced By Mill Openings

DUNCAN—The number of registered unemployed at the Duncan office of the National Employment Service rose sharply above the December total, and at mid-January the number was 2,169.

However, this figure was lowered to 1,913 with the reopening after seasonal closures of sawmills of Western Forest Industries at Honeymoon Bay and Hillcrest Lumber Co. at Mesachie Lake.

The B.C. Cement Co. plant reopened Jan. 20 and the employment situation now is static, according to R. H. Robinson, manager of the Duncan NES office.

On the other hand, there is no indication of an early return of woods workers as high inventories and poor market conditions prevail.

UNCERTAIN

The situation in the lumbering industry remains uncertain, where 90 men of the second shift of the WFI bandmill at Honeymoon Bay have been laid off indefinitely. Other large operators have made some small cutbacks in crews, but production remains constant.

Further large layoffs by subcontractors at the pulp mill at Crofton were partially offset by the hiring of 110 permanent employees from this area out of a total staff of 285. The BCFP mill is currently undergoing test runs.

Mild weather has encouraged a number of smaller construction starts. Virtually no demand has existed for labor and the situation is similar to that of the preceding week.

Because of the number of highly skilled unplaced applicants, considerable success has been achieved in filling vacancies in other areas through NES clearance procedures.

Island Firemen Win Many Honors

Vancouver Island fire departments won several honors in the Canadian defence department section of the 1957 international fire prevention contest sponsored by the National Fire Protection Association.

In Royal Canadian Navy rankings Patricia Bay Airport crew won second for installations of less than 1,500 men, and Rocky Point Magazine received honorable mention.

Belmont Park married quarters at Colwood was first in the medium class, with from 1,500 to 3,000 personnel, and the RCN barracks at Esquimalt won honorable mention.

First place for installations of more than 3,500 personnel went to HMC Dockyard.

Top U.S. Editors To Visit Island

NANAIMO (CP) — Four top American newspaper editors will visit Vancouver Island from July 27 to Aug. 9 to study industrial development.

Walter Humphrey of the Fort Worth (Tex.) Press, Ray Dunlop of the St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch, Herb Beck of the Chicago Herald-American, and Paul E. Noyes of the San Francisco Chronicle will be guests of the Pacific Northwest Travel Association.

Boat Basin Access Road Now Assured

LADYSMITH — Provincial highways department has guaranteed to provide a public access road to the site of the proposed boat basin here.

It is felt that the promise of the road removes the last obstacle to plans of the federal government to build the boat basin.

Representations regarding the road were made to B.C. Deputy Highways Minister Evan Jones by Len Ryan, chairman of the village commission, and John McNaughton, chairman of Ladysmith Chamber of Commerce industrial development committee.

It is felt that approval of the project by the House of Commons will mean that the $136,000 boat basin project can be undertaken this year. It was not scheduled for presentation in the estimates without assurance that public access would be provided.

Building of the access road will require the purchase of private property adjacent to a private road leading to the site. Detailed plans for the construction of the boat basin have been prepared by the federal government.

NOMINATION MEETING SET

COOMBS (CP) — The CCF will nominate its Comox-Alberni riding candidate for the next federal election at a convention here Feb. 23. Provincial leader Robert Strachan will be guest speaker.

ONE VACCINE AGAINST FLU, POLIO POSSIBLE

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Two Tulane University doctors said today their research shows it is possible to make a single vaccine giving protection against colds, flu and polio.

Dr. William J. Mogabgab and Dr. William Peon made the announcement at a meeting of the southern section of the American Federation for Clinical Research.

The doctors said they isolated a new virus which causes colds. They call it the "2060" virus.

Liberals Ready For Election Now—Pearson

By JOHN MIKA, Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson dropped a hint today that he may have another motion of non-confidence up his sleeve next week and stated that the Liberals are ready for an election at "any time."

At a Vancouver airport press conference, he said, "if the government goes back into supply Monday or Tuesday, there will be another motion of confidence motion if the occasion warrants."

"There also could be a want of confidence motion put when they bring down the rest of their legislation."

Mr. Pearson said he was aware that there was much criticism of his want of confidence amendment last Monday, because it obviously was not designed to force an election.

"I'm sure a lot of people would have been glad to see the excitement of the convention carried through to a motion defeating the government."

WOULD HELP TORIES

"But that would have given the government exactly what they wanted, an escape from the unemployment and trade problems, and an escape from bringing down further legislation, and an escape from the responsibility of bringing on an election."

The new Liberal standard bearer said he was not "in a position the first day I took over to move an amendment which would have resulted in dissolution. So I moved one that could get the solid support of our party, based on our new platform."

"However, that doesn't necessarily mean the tactics of the first day will be repeated."

Mr. Pearson is in Vancouver to address the Vancouver Board of Trade tonight and the annual provincial Liberal convention Saturday.

The Liberal leader said the government had ridiculed his party for "being afraid of the ballot box."

READY ANY TIME

"Well, if they want ballot boxes, they can have dissolution at any time they want. The Liberal party is ready for an election at any time."

Mr. Pearson said he personally had no particular preference between an immediate election or one in June or this fall.

Had his amendment won, relief of unemployment conditions would have been the target of Liberal legislation. Also, "immediate consideration of the British free trade proposal would have been given which is not being done now."

Calling the British plan the "most exciting trade proposal we've had in recent years," Mr. Pearson scored the Conservatives for their intention to divert 15% of Canada's U.S. trade to Great Britain.

WIRE BRIEFS

France in Race

PARIS (AP)—Roger Baifras, director of France's research centre on thermonuclear fusion, said today temperatures of "about 1,000,000 degrees centigrade" have been reached in the laboratory of Fontenay-aux-Roses near Paris. "Experiments are going on at a fast pace and there is no doubt that France is in a good position in the race for thermonuclear energy," Baifras said.

Mothers Lose Appeal

PEIPING (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-lai notified three American mothers today that he could not consider their appeal for release of their sons from prison terms for espionage.

Late Stock Rally

NEW YORK (AP)—A late spurt in demand sent prices to new highs in the general average since last Oct. 15 on active trading on the stock market today.

Phone Hike Deferred

OTTAWA (BUP)—The government has deferred the effective date of freight rate increases granted the Bell Telephone Company of Canada from Jan. 31 to March 1. Prime Minister John Diefenbaker announced today.

Strike Fund Voted

DETROIT (AP)—A special convention of United Auto Workers today approved a $50,000,000 strike fund to back up the union's profit-sharing demands in 1958 bargaining talks.

Early Sitzings Out

OTTAWA (CP)—Works Minister Howard Green, government House leader, announced today that he has "relented" and will not ask the Commons to sit Monday and Tuesday mornings as originally planned.

Farm Bill Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's farm price stabilization bill today was given approval in principle by the Commons by a vote of 110 to 37. Opposing the bill were the CCF and Social Credit groups and two Liberal members, Walter Tucker, Rosethorn, Sask., and Louis Denis, St. Boniface, Man.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

Unusual view of crowded legislative chamber is shown in this picture by Times photographer Bill Halkett. It was taken Thursday as Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross opening second session of 25th Legislature. View through main doors shows packed assembly floor, and equally full Speaker's gallery above. Session is expected to last six to eight weeks.

PUBLIC WORKS STATEMENT DUE

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is giving consideration to launching public works to relieve unemployment where it exists, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today in the Commons. An announcement in this regard will be made shortly, he told the House.

Heavy Rainfall Claims Death, Snarls Traffic

VANCOUVER (CP)—Many areas of southwestern B.C. were under water today following a deluge Thursday that in at least one area set a record for a January day.

The downpour was blamed for one death, rockslides that blocked sections of a highway and washed out part of a railway line, and traffic snarls. Bradley Matthews, 6, was drowned when he fell into the swollen Eagle Creek in Burnaby, near here. He was swept more than a quarter of a mile downstream.

The rainfall at Vancouver's International Airport in the 24-hour period ended 10 p.m. Thursday was 2.56 inches, heaviest on record for January. The previous mark was 1.38 inches Jan. 6, 1946, the weather office said.

A section of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway track 27 miles north of Vancouver was washed out. Passengers were transported from Squamish to North Vancouver by boat.

A company spokesman said it was hoped to have the track repaired today.

PORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Marlene Stewart Strait of Toronto upset medalist Mrs. Barbara Romack Porter of Sacramento, Calif., 1 up in 19 holes today in the second round of the Helen Lee Doherty challenge golf tournament.

30 Families Flee Up-Island Floods

Flood waters that struck at least six Up-Island communities, and forced the evacuation of 30 families at Alberni, subsided today with the easing of drenching rains of Wednesday night and Thursday.

Roads were flooded in the vicinity of Duncan and Westholme, the Cat Stream at Nanaimo sent flood waters through gardens, and three families were isolated for a few hours at Parksville, when Englishman River overflowed its banks.

But Alberni was the hardest hit of all. "Rain that fell 'in sheets' Wednesday night and continued unabated Thursday was blamed for floods on Rogers Creek, that washed out the Gertrude Street bridge, and rampaging Kitsukis Creek that forced 30 families in the Margaret Street area to leave their homes."

Also evacuated were 36 trailers in a trailer camp that were hurriedly towed to safety as flood waters rose. City authorities said streets now are dry, and that the Margaret Street bridge, awash Thursday, is open. Two water lines washed out by the floods are being repaired today.

At the height of the flood RCMP had to evacuate members of one family who had three inches of water over the floors of their home, and attempts were made to open blocked culverts with dynamite. Cars were stalled, and one man in the stricken area was seen in his yard, standing in water up to his knees, and building a raft.

Neighboring Port Alberni suffered mostly from flooded basements, that kept city workers busy with pumps. Nanaimo also suffered from flooded basements and overflowing drains, mainly in the Harewood and Brechin areas.

Sandbags, Ditches Divert Water

Surface water aggravated the subsidence of Pioneer Square where old mine workings are believed to have collapsed. Sandbags and hurriedly dug ditches diverted water away from the depression, where 40 feet of curb and sidewalk collapsed. Water gushed into Commercial Street as rushing waters in a drain lifted a manhole cover.

But General Use Many Years Off

(From Times News Dispatches)

Reports claiming "fruitful and promising results" in experiments aimed at harnessing H-bomb reaction to produce industrial electric power were released simultaneously today by the British and U.S. governments.

Both stated flatly, however, that the day of unlimited thermonuclear power — if it ever comes — is "many years" distant and made it clear that the hundreds of millions invested in atomic power on both sides of the Atlantic is not in any jeopardy.

A statement from Britain's Atomic Energy Authority confirmed what has been an open secret for months past—that physicists at the Harwell atomic research establishment believe they have been able to make atoms join together and release free energy in a controlled laboratory experiment.

This is the kind of energy process that takes place in the sun and has kept it hot for millions of years. It is also the energy released instantaneously by an H-bomb.

The Harwell team includes Dr. P. C. Thonemann, an Australian, and Dr. W. B. Thompson, a Canadian from Vancouver and Toronto. Working with a strange, doughnut-shaped machine called Zeta—short for zero-energy thermonuclear assembly—they have produced temperatures as high as 5,000,000 degrees centigrade (9,000,000 degrees Fahrenheit).

The Atomic Energy Authority's report said these temperatures are higher than the measured surface temperatures of any star.

Though—as the report pointed out—it will be many years before the new power can be applied to practical use, scientists view the Harwell achievement as something as big—if not bigger—than the Russian Sputnik triumph.

Trying for Atomic 'Fusion'

The objective in both the American and British work is to get hydrogen atoms to "fuse," or join in sufficient quantities so that sufficient energy is released to generate power.

The process is the opposite of atomic energy released in the fission process in which atoms are split.

If the hydrogen process could be perfected, there would be enough hydrogen in sea water to supply mankind's power requirements for millions of years.

But the problems to be surmounted are twofold: 1. Generating temperatures of 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 degrees for a process that would involve the least accessible kind of hydrogen called "tritium" or a temperature of about 400,000,000 degrees for a more accessible kind called "deuterium." Both are heavy forms of hydrogen.

Both said—as they have previously—that their experiments suggest that they have actually produced fusion reactions, even though for a limited time and at temperatures lower than would be needed on a practical scale.

And both indicated that if this were so, it would be an extraordinary achievement.

Fusion Source Of Vast Energy

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(AP Science Reporter)

Taming the H-bomb could give all nations unlimited power or energy for millions of years.

This burning only involves a chemical change. Oxygen combines with carbon and hydrogen in the coal, oil or gasoline. You get hot gases to produce heat and power. Atoms are not destroyed as atoms—they change from solid to gaseous compounds while giving up chemical energy. But the coal and oil are gone as coal and oil.

Really inexhaustible energy is locked up within the hearts or nuclei of atoms and the forces that hold them together. Atom hearts contain the basic material or mass of everything, living or lifeless.

Some of this atomic mass can be transformed into energy. This is what happens in A-bombs or atomic power plants. The nucleus of an atom of uranium-235 or certain other

U.S. Bomber 'SHIELDED'

Electrons Thwart Missile Attacks

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—G. Mitchell, president of Sylva Electronic Products, said today his company has developed a new flying car around itself with a shield of electrons to ward off any attacking missiles.

The automatic defence system being built into Convair's new B-58 Hustler is one of the most spectacular applications of electronics in defence, Don Mitchell told reporters.

In essence the shield system generates an electric magnetic field around the aircraft that fouls up, disrupts and jams the guiding systems of approaching missiles.

Prof. Huson resigned because he could not start work on the project immediately.

Russ Pressed For Reaction On Parley

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has prodded Russia on President Eisenhower's plan for lower-level talks as a possible prelude to a summit conference.

The state department said today Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow called on Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko Thursday to inquire about Soviet reaction to Eisenhower's ideas.

Gromyko, in reply to Thompson, said the Soviet government would comment on the proposals "in due course."

OTTAWA BOOSTS SHARE IN B.C. ROAD BUILDING

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has agreed to contribute an additional $1,500,000 toward construction of the 250-mile Stewart-Cassiar road in north-central British Columbia, it was learned today. Under a revised agreement with the B.C. government the road also will be built over a period of five instead of four years.

NORMAN CRIBBENS IN THE LEGISLATURE

The visitor from Russia might notice little difference between the opening of the mother Parliaments in Westminster and the opening of the B.C. Legislature in Victoria.

The colorful ritual is the same except that in Westminster the Speech from the Throne is read by a radiant young Queen and in Victoria by Her Majesty's representative the Lieutenant-Governor.

But the Russian visitor to Victoria might be puzzled to hear the staid ceremonies interrupted by strange mutterings about a courthouse.

"Kaut-aus, vat iss a kaut-aus?" he might ask.

And then someone would have to explain that the uninitiated Liberal members of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition—George Gregory and Archie Gibbs—felt so strongly about the need for a new home for Victoria's lawyers and judges that they had to inject it into the ceremonies.

They did so when Public Works Minister W. N. Chant asked leave to present his departmental report for the year, and again when Premier Bennett, as finance minister, begged permission to present his.

"The courthouse—what about the courthouse?" asked Mr. Gregory in politely modulated tones.

"Yes, what about the courthouse?" murmured Mr. Gibbs—with an offstage obligato by CCF Leader Robert Strachan.

Neither Mr. Chant nor the premier would allow them.

the district are built on stilts and escaped unscathed.

Campbell River, Courtenay, Parksville, and Tofino reported heavy rains, but Estevan Point took Island honors with a record 6.44 inches of rain in 48 hours.

Westholme reported flood waters at the corner of Island Highway and Crofton Road for a few hours, but gave credit for removal of gravel from Chemainus River by construction crews early this year for keeping the water level down. It did not rise above 10 inches, and in previous years two feet of water has not been uncommon.

Victoria escaped from the brunt of the storm that wreaked havoc up-Island, and will have a few showers tonight and cloudy periods with partial clearing Saturday.

Evidence of the mild weather was given in temperature reports that showed Victoria, with a maximum temperature of 49 degrees Thursday, was the warmest city in Canada.

Calgary and Vancouver were next with 47 degrees, and Victoria's minimum temperature of 46 degrees proved to be higher than the maximums for all the rest of the country.

Highways department crews working on a rock slide that blocked the Parksville-Alberni Highway Thursday at 3 a.m. at Angel Rock, beside Cameron Lake, had two-way traffic restored by late afternoon.

important step in the quest. But both said—as they also have said previously—that they are still not sure that this is the case, and that further experiments will be needed to establish this.

The reports stressed that in the fusion field they have not reached a point comparable to the first atomic fission reaction achieved on Dec. 2, 1942, which launched the atomic bomb.

Russia for some years has been working along the same lines as British physicists to achieve controlled thermonuclear reaction, but has not announced any success beyond the achievement of a temperature of 1,000,000 degrees centigrade.

The U.S. has been exchanging information with Britain on developments.

There has been widespread criticism in London over reports that the U.S. left behind by Russia on Sputniks, persuaded Britain to delay announcing the Harwell success until American scientists could catch up. But Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has denied this.

In Washington, Strauss said today that the reports now released by the two countries show that "certain comparative observations which have been published in recent weeks about British and U.S. progress in this field... have been not only misleading but lacking in any foundation of fact."

Today's scientific reports actually showed that each country had achieved a certain result which the other had not.

The U.S. reported achievement of temperatures higher than those reported by British scientists—6,000,000 degrees centigrade against 5,000,000.

Britain, on the other hand, reported sustaining the temperatures for a longer period of time—for periods of thousands of a second as compared with millionths of a second reported by the Americans.

The higher American temperatures were achieved in particular experiments that began just last month, whereas the British scientists apparently achieved theirs several months before. Neither country, however, alluded to any significance in such differences in results or time when achieved.

Temperatures of at least 100,000,000 degrees—sustained for perhaps several seconds—would be required to obtain useful power from the hydrogen, or fusion, reaction.

American officials, in today's report, also said that an analysis of the British results indicated that in the particular apparatus used by Britain, an "unknown process" must be in operation.

BUSH PILOT RESCUED AFTER WEEK'S ORDEAL

WINNIPEG (CP)—A bush pilot who spent a week stranded on a frozen northern Manitoba lake in 20-below-zero weather, Thursday was rescued unharmed by the crew of an RCAF search plane.

James Leslie Dougans, 42, of Regina, landed on the lake Jan. 16 when his small bush plane ran afoul of bad flying weather and engine trouble. He was on a 95-mile flight from Utik Lake, 325 miles north of here, to Wabowden, Man., carrying a cargo of frozen lake trout. The fish was his main diet during the week.

heavy atoms is split or fissioned into two or more pieces. But all these pieces together aren't as heavy as the original single nucleus. Some of the matter was changed into useful energy.

The world hasn't got inexhaustible supplies of the heavy atoms that will split this way. One estimate is that all such reserves would give us energy equal to 10 to 100 times the amount of all the world's remaining coal.

A-SHES ARE MENACE

That's a lot, but with population increasing and more and more people using and wanting electricity and power, we could run out of atomic power in time. And the atomic splitting creates highly dangerous radioactive wastes which are becoming more and more troublesome to dump anywhere safely.

The H-bomb or fusion reaction offers a way out.

It actually fuses or combines lightweight atoms to create heavier ones. Two atoms of double-weight hydrogen become one atom of helium, for example. The heat of this helium atom weighs less than the two original hydrogen atoms. Some of the original mass turned into energy.

It takes tremendous heat and pressure to produce the fusion.

Our sun "burns" on this principle, and will keep going for billions of years this way. H-bombs are set off by the heat and pressure from an A-bomb explosion used as a trigger.

SOLVING PROBLEM

The peacetime problem is to get enormous temperatures and materials and methods to keep H-fusion going at a controlled rate and draw off useful heat from it. This is what scientists hope to solve. They are making some progress.

The H-fusion produces no radioactive ashes. The radioactivity from H-bombs mainly comes from the A-bomb trigger, or from materials, such as a uranium jacket, used to give it more explosive force.

Controlled H-fusion means we could use double-weight hydrogen, called deuterium, as our principal fuel. "The world's oceans contain enough to power civilizations for millions or even billions of years."

And deuterium is not costly to get from the seas. Cost has been estimated as making deuterium less than 1 per cent as expensive as coal as a fuel.

CROWDS GETTING SMALLER

House 'Spectacular' Has Rating Troubles

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

"What's going on here?" asked a man outside the B.C. legislature Thursday afternoon as the kilted-Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) swung into view.

"Oh, just the opening of parliament," said another man in a tired voice. "They're waiting for the lieutenant-governor to arrive."

This seemed characteristic of a certain apathy towards the opening of the House. The crowds were much smaller this year and no one looked the least bit excited by the thunder of the cannons or the fine body of marching men.

DRIFTED AWAY

Many drifted off during the hour-long wait for the reappearance of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross after opening the House.

Inside, the ceremonies were brightened by the introduction of new members William Spear (SC-Cariboo), Cedric Cox (CCF-Burnaby) and Gordon Gibson (SC-Delta).

There was a silent standing tribute to the late Ralph Chet-

How Sang Is Your Froid?

THE very young lady who visits our house is the helpful Hannah type. On occasions you'll find her washing the kitchen paintwork with a dish cloth that she has failed to wash.

Regularly she sweeps the floor, taking a short grip on the broom and wielding it like a hockey player swinging his stick in anger. We dodge around behind her to stand in front of the kitchen range's glass door because the handle of the broom stretches past her a couple of feet and she assumes no responsibility for what she cannot see.

The very young lady has a periodic passion for tidiness. She'll move irritably about, closing drawers that may be half an inch open. And when a cutting board is left out for no apparent reason, she's certain to push it back in its slot.

When she was smaller and couldn't see on top, she pushed in a cutting board holding a casserole in which a lemon pudding was cooling. The results were spectacular and the floor a bit sticky.

The boss of our house handles these incidents rather well. She explains to the young lady that it's necessary to be careful. But she does not discourage the young miss from further activity.

It's important, says the boss of our house, to let children try to be helpful. It gives them confidence, makes them feel useful.

LET THEM FEEL USEFUL

And if an accident occurs, well, try not to upset the youngster too much unless the accident arises from the child's disobedience.

"They have to learn," says the boss of our house. "If you don't let them carry kitchen crockery around, they'll never feel safe when they are old enough to handle bone china."

I watch the system with all the detachment possible in a highly strung person.

The other day the very young lady was demonstrating her maturity and social competence by passing around a full box of chocolates. As she swung past the table, the box caught its corner and the chocolates fell in an avalanche.

The young miss looked shocked, but before her face could crumple in distress, the boss of our house switched the young lady's interest.

"Pick them up," she told her small charge

as the dog, Susy, sidled over, just looking, of course. "Pick them up and put them in the box. Don't bother about their little paper nests. They're a nuisance anyhow."

So the young lady busied herself picking them up and passed them around again. I'd sort of lost my appetite for chocolates, but I took one.

The very young lady, I presume, will be more careful the next time she takes chocolates around—and she won't have to overcome an excessive nervousness because the crash incident was passed off without fuss.

Thus, I take it, the child is developing sang-froid. I wish I had developed it. Life must be so much easier to the man who has it.

All my sang froid is imaginary. In fantasy I can handle the most embarrassing situations with the easy grace of a true aristocrat. The right words slip readily from my lips.

FOOT IN MOUTH

When embarrassing situations actually occur, I mumble incoherently around the foot that gets stuck in my mouth.

I remember once when a friend of mine tried to adjust a Venetian blind in the living room with all the enthusiasm of a tug-of-war team. Naturally he yanked the whole contraption off the wall. That was an occasion when I should have said, "Think nothing of it. I do it all the time."

I was so busy checking the impulse to say, "You clumsy oaf" that the echoes of the crashing blind resounded through a chill and uncomfortable silence. He knew, and right well, that I didn't like people tearing Venetian blinds off my windows.

I've always wanted to adopt an easy tolerance to policemen in minor traffic cases. So I should. I'm a taxpayer and relatively law-abiding. But when a simple operation like the $1 over-parking gouge is performed on me, I'm reduced to stammering meekness. I go to the traffic office and ask if I can please pay here. It's only after I'm on the street again that I think of what I should have said.

When I eat a cream puff in public and the inside squishes out over my tie and shirt-front I never can pass it off gracefully. It always renders me a lout.

In a dozen ways I lose the sang in my froid, or the froid in my sang. But maybe it isn't my fault. I never spilled enough lemon pudding in my childhood or dropped a sufficient number of chocolates on the floor. It's the early training that counts.

U.S. Economic Growth Still Ahead of Canada

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

New Civic Pensions Near Industry Level

Proposed amendments to the Municipal Superannuation Act likely will make the scheme more comparable with pension schemes of major industries and senior governments, city comptroller Dennis A. Young said Thursday.

At present, pensions are smaller than those granted in most pension plans, in relation to the employee's contributions.

Mr. Young based his remark on planning outlined at the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention last September. Promise of amendment was contained in the Speech from the Throne.

But during the next few decades the rate of growth of Canada's population and production will likely far exceed the American rate, the report said.

U.S. population might rise by some 51 per cent in the 1950-75 period, to 229,000,000 from 152,000,000. Canada's population might increase by some 75 per cent to 24,000,000 from 14,000,000.

FASTER RATE

The report used a 1950 population figure. Canada's population is expected to reach 17,000,000 within a few months.

The report said national production in the U.S. may double in the 1950-75 period to some $568,000,000,000—an increase of some 2.8 per cent a year. Canada's production might rise at an annual rate of 3.25 per cent to some $53,000,000,000.

Thus, Canada might be able to accumulate wealth at a faster pace than the U.S., the world's wealthiest country. But some factors might interfere.

The use of atomic power and automation might widen the Canada-U.S. wealth gap. It appeared that large-scale production would be required to make full use of these developments and in this the U.S. might have an advantage because of the bigger American home market.

Another problem was that any decline in foreign investment in Canada would retard Canada's economic growth.

UN CORRESPONDENCE

By STANLEY BURKE

Cafeteria Melting Pot

NEW YORK—Human refinement has reached a new high at the United Nations cafeteria.

You go down the line and point out your choices, just as you would at any paleolithic eatery in Canada but then you get to the beverages and civilization comes crashing in. You can order wine—red wine or white wine—in a cafeteria.

One glass of white wine, you say, trying to act nonchalant. Actually you feel as odd as you would ordering a double scotch from a bus driver. You're slightly surprised when the man doesn't raise his eyebrows and calmly pours your wine and hands it to you.

It's California wine. The white is quite pleasant. The red is a bit rough but well worth the 20 cents you pay for it.

They also have sari at the UN and here again civilization reaches a new high. Surely no raiment ever flowed round the female form more enchantingly than the sari. It's more graceful than a ballroom gown, more suggestive than a Bikini.

The sari, I'm told, is simplicity itself, simply a length of material knotted at the waist and then flowed around the body. It's simple and the ultimate effect is simply delightful, especially when worn with a little bodice top and bare midriff.

HANDS OFF!

I've also learned in my two weeks at the UN that the red dot Indian women wear on their foreheads was originally a "hands off" signal indicating that wearer was married. Today, however, the marriage age is becoming older and many unmarried women wear forehead dots purely as cosmetic adornment. Originally they were put on with a red rouge but today they are often made of paper. Sometimes Indian women are daringly gay and wear stars, crescents or other shapes.

There is also a prodigious amount of work done at the UN, most of which you never hear of. The man who sat with me at lunch yesterday, for example, was an American negro working on an economic report on Morocco. He pointed out that the first step in assisting in the development of any country is to find out what is happening there now. This is more difficult than it sounds for most underdeveloped countries have little statistical material and few men who either appreciate the need for it or know how to prepare it.

Among other things, my friend told me something about the world slave trade, something most people think went out a century ago. It still flourishes, however, especially in the Middle East. Slaves are rounded up as far away as Northwest Africa and moved across North Africa to the slave markets of the Middle East.

The United Nations secretariat is a mine of information but the ore is more difficult to work than in Ottawa. A Canadian civil servant has only one master, his minister, and senior men know what they can safely say to reliable newspaper men. They often speak with remarkable candor, sometimes even giving out information which is quite opposed to policies of their ministers. At the United Nations, the situation is different. There international civil servants have 82 masters and the only way you can please 82 masters is to say nothing.

FURROWS AND DOGS

But one of the most interesting bits of information I've picked up on the betterment of mankind and the preservation of human life is at Greenwich, Conn., where I live: (This is one of the dormitory communities around the big city.) It's located within convenient commuting distance—only an hour and 10 minutes each way, portal to portal.

On many residential streets around here they install bone-shattering bumps, which can't be crossed at over 15 miles an hour, to slow down traffic and protect children. The bumps consist of six-inch ridges of asphalt across the roads marked with reflectors to save the necks and shock-absorbers of night time drivers.

If there were furrows like these on Canadian streets, there would be fewer furrows in the brows of Canadian parents.

And talking about conditions in Greenwich, I must report that my next door neighbor, Carl Becker, has a boxer dog by the name of Dempsey. This dog Dempsey, who is one of the toughest looking beasts I have ever seen, sleeps in a dog house equipped with electric radiant heat, thermostatically controlled.

I wonder how he'd make out in a scrap with a Russian wolf hound from a non-thermostatically controlled kennel?

B.C. Control Sought Over Telephone Firm

CCF Leader Wants Ottawa To Give Up Jurisdiction

An attempt to have the B.C. Telephone Co. placed under provincial jurisdiction will be made by the CCF at the current legislative session.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan served notice today he will introduce a motion that the provincial government should ask Ottawa to have control of the company reverted to B.C.

INEFFECTIVE

Mr. Strachan said B.C. Telephone now is "subject only to limited and ineffective control" by the federal board of transport commissioners.

His motion said the province should have control of B.C. Telephone Co. so that rates and service could be regulated by the PUC.

$16,840 Loss On Two City Parks

Victoria's two enclosed parks were operated last year at a loss of $16,840 last year, city parks administrator W. H. Warren reported today.

He told a council committee rates charged for use of the parks are the lowest of any city parks in Canada.

To break even, the rates would have to be increased 10 times, he said.

The Shrine Horse Show, one of 1957's best attended events at Macdonald Park, meant a loss to the city of $60, he gave as an example. Royal Athletic Park costs over the year were $12,287 while revenues were only $1,842.

He pointed out both parks are maintaining low charges in order to promote organized sport in the area.

Parks committee chairman, Ald. M. H. Mooney felt the loss was small when compared to the benefit to the community. The report was received and filed and no recommendation for increased fees will go to council.

At present fees are 10 per cent of the gross or a minimum of $10. Mr. Warren proposed the minimum charge should be $100.

F. J. Tate, Victoria West Old-Timer, Dies

Former official in the Crystal Spring Beverage Co., Frederick James Tate, 85, 526 Langford, died Thursday at his home.

Born in Hamilton, Ont., Mr. Tate came to Victoria in 1901. He was one of the oldest members of St. Saviour's Church, Victoria West.

A bachelor, he is survived by two sisters, Beatrice Tate, Port Coquitlam, and Annie Tate, Vancouver.

Rev. Douglas Kendall will officiate at a funeral service in St. Saviour's Church, Tuesday, at 3:15 p.m. Interment will be in the family plot at Ross Bay Cemetery.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—Would you please tell me who was the first mayor of Vancouver when it was called Gastown? Who was Gassy Jack?—P. B. and L. E.

A—There was no mayor of Vancouver when it was called Gastown. The first mayor was M. A. MacLean (1886-1887) following incorporation of the city in 1886, April 6. Population at that time was about 2,000. Gassy Jack's real name was Jack Delton, who arrived at what is now Vancouver in 1868, and started in business with a barrel of whisky. Gastown got its name from the locality of Delton. He operated a couple of places where hard-working settlers could quench their thirsts.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

UBC Drive Here Gets $33,000

Advance gifts to the UBC Development Fund approximate $33,000 to date in the Victoria area, campaign officials announced today.

Hon. Robert W. Mayhew, chairman of this section, told the Times that "a unique and valuable contribution" in this list comprised a gift of 500 shares of stock from an anonymous Victorian, currently valued at $20 a share.

An anonymous industry contributed $10,000 to the total, made up of two yearly gifts of $5,000 apiece.

PAPERS GIVE

Both the Victoria Daily Times and The Daily Colonist have contributed $2,500, for a total press gift of $5,000.

First to be canvassed in the drive were officials of the campaign themselves.

Included in this category were Mr. Mayhew, $6,000; Judge Joseph B. Clearhugh, president of Victoria College Council, $1,000, and alumni chairman Lloyd G. McKenzie and J. S. Keate, $500 apiece.

Two hundred alumni have started the canvass of 1,100 graduates living in the Victoria area. First campaign totals are expected by honorary treasurer Gordon Holmes next week.

OVER $4.7 MILLION

Over-all standing of the campaign—whose goal of $7.5 million will be matched dollar-for-dollar by the provincial government—is in excess of $4.7 million.

G. F. Dunn and Justin Harbord, heading up a personal canvass in Victoria, today expressed the hope that their job would be completed next week, and urged workers to complete their kits and return them to headquarters at 850 Gordon Street.

Meanwhile, unsolicited contributions from the public continue to arrive at the UBC office, including one from a retired couple with $100 who wrote that their daughter went to UBC 30 years ago but that they kept up their interest in the university through the graduate publication, The Chronicle.

Police Voting Protests Registered

'Vote on Policy, Then Enforce It'

A move to block district police officers from voting at Juvenile Detention Home meetings, was asked today by city council's welfare committee.

The group also will recommend to council that a new system be adopted for municipal sharing of costs of operating the Cold Harbor Road juvenile home.

Council will be asked to oppose attempts to have the government drop the age limit for juveniles from 18 to 16, support an amalgamated district juvenile court, appointment of a probation officer staff, and a joint family court.

Ald. M. H. Mooney said he was not "in agreement with the way the juvenile home is working." (In recent months the home has been centre of attention due to repeated break-outs and vandalism by older youths.)

He said he understood police juvenile officers attending the meetings with elected representatives were voting on policy matters.

"The police are voting on policy and then enforcing it." The committee motion called for voting powers to be "defined."

LEGISLATURE LILY GILD LAMPOONED

Much of the talk in the legislative corridors on opening day Thursday was about the centennial year decorations on the front of the main buildings.

Almost all of it was unfavorable.

Adjectives such as "gaudy," "cheap" and "garish" were heard. "The standards of decoration used are of a standard you would expect at the entrance to a carnival side show," commented Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

PTAs Protest Treatment Cuts

The British Columbia Parent-Teacher Federation has lodged a "strong" protest with the provincial health department opposing a proposed 5 per cent cut in services in fields of mental health, rehabilitation and juvenile crime treatment centres.

George Black, Ex-Yukon MP, Here With Bride

George Black, 85, who represented the Yukon in the House of Commons for many years and was known throughout the Commonwealth as the MP from the North Pole, is in Victoria today with his bride of 24 hours.

She is the former Sadie King, 65, sister of the late Mickey O'Rourke, V.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Black are staying at the Empress Hotel until Tuesday.

They were married at a quiet, unpublicized ceremony in Vancouver Thursday.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

A House Full of Echoes

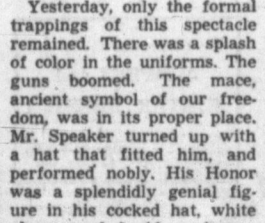

The opening of the House always provides an interesting study of provincial manners and mores, the tribal customs of our society.

In days past, this was an event of great swirl and elan. It was always fun to see our hard-rock miners and lumberjacks of yesterday, splendidly attired in cut-away suits and grey toppers, their stylish ladies on their arms. It was exciting to see, here compressed in one small marble chamber, the power of our province—the men who made our lumber, marketed our fish, harnessed our rivers, banked our money and installed our long-distance lines; each distinguished, smiling and courtly, and intimate with the horny-handed sons of toil who "governed" them.

Yesterday, only the formal trappings of this spectacle remained. There was a splash of color in the uniforms. The guns boomed. The mace, ancient symbol of our freedom, was in its proper place. Mr. Speaker turned up with a hat that fitted him, and performed nobly. His Honor was a splendidly genial figure in his cocked hat, white gloves and braid, and conducted the whole business as the Queen would command.

But in the wings there was a subtle difference. The cast of supporting players has changed. The sense of electricity, the style and pace of past years, was missing.

The moujiks of industry, with one or two exceptions, were absent. In their place they sent executive assistants, vice-presidents and public relations men. The cosmopolitan gentlemen of the consulates and the gay social blades were not to be seen.

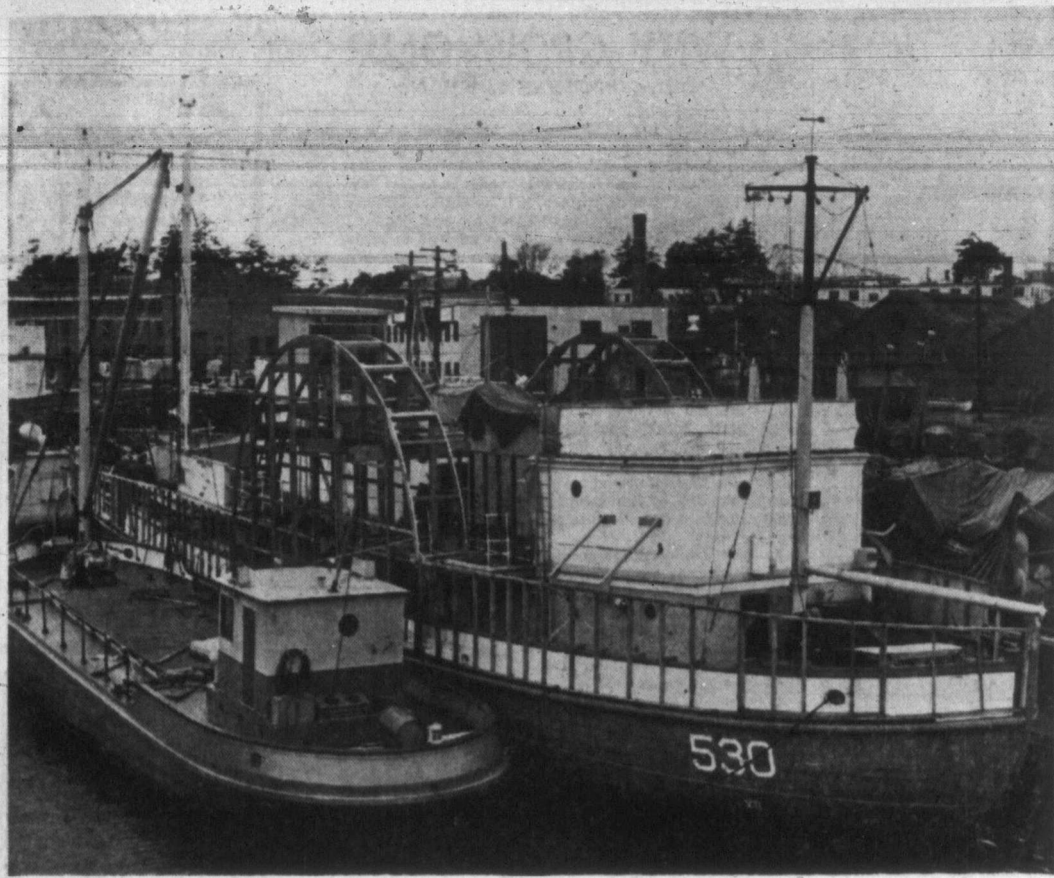

In their stalls were the limpets of politics; the defeated candidates; the campaign managers, the boys who raise the money and those who seek it, the "advisers," the in-laws, the salesmen, the party heelers. One of the gentlemen, if that is the correct word, was tastefully attired in a checkered sports shirt, sans tie.

stakes," beloved of the social writers, was a disappointment. Five memorable years ago a Vancouver doctor's wife turned up, forsooth, in a headpiece which featured a golf ball rampant on a yard of green grass.

The House was awed and delighted by this outrageous conceit. There was in the corridors that day a palpable masculine urge to grab the nearest No. 7 iron and loft the ball into the Inner Harbor.

The one courageous confesion in the House Thursday belonged to a handsome young woman who appeared to have taken a funnel, glued it all over with feathers, and plopped it on her head, spout up. Who was she? We shall never know. She was an ornament from the past, in a House full of rustling echoes.

Sea Cadets To Sail Down Under

One sea cadet officer and 24 Royal Canadian Sea Cadets will be embarked in the training cruiser HMCS Ontario when she leaves Esquimalt Feb. 24 on her second major cruise of the year.

The Navy League of Canada, sponsor of the Sea Cadet program, announced today that nine of the cadets will be from B.C., six from Alberta, three from Saskatchewan, four from Manitoba and two from Ontario.

Ports of call for the cruise, which will end May 5, have not been set, but it is believed the Ontario will make port as far away as Australia.

It will be the second Pacific cruise for sea cadets this year. At present 26 are embarked in five ships of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, bound for the Far East.

The Ontario is also away at present, in California and Mexico waters, returning Feb. 10.

Unemployment On Decline In Victoria

Unemployment in Victoria has passed its peak and is slowly on the decline, officials of the National Employment Service office here reported today.

NES said the number of jobless this week totaled 5,819 as compared with 5,966 a week ago—a decrease of 147.

It is the first time in six months that the unemployment figure has decreased.

"There are now 88 less men and 59 fewer women registered for employment with the local office," NES officials said. "The peak of unemployment appears to have been reached and from now on there is expected to be a steady decline in the number of jobless persons in the area."

NES officials said renewed activity in the construction and lumbering industry is starting to provide more people with jobs.

3-Month Term For 'Clumsy' Bad Cheque Try

A "clumsy" attempt to pass a forged cheque resulted in a three-month jail sentence for Thomas Godfrey, 975 Fairfield, when he appeared today in city police court.

Godfrey attempted to pass the cheque at a local grocery store last Friday. He was turned over to police by the store owner.

Defence counsel Alan Bigelow asked for a moderate sentence. Godfrey, he said, "went to a store where they knew him... it looks almost like a psychological wish to get caught."

The "attempt and... whole action was clumsy," Magistrate H. C. Hall told the accused, "the logical result of your manner of life."

"It seems to me you are really an alcoholic and haven't faced up to that fact."

VICTORIA DIVORCES

Divorces were granted in Victoria divorce court Thursday to: Annie Clinton Baddeley, 608 St. Patrick Street, Victoria, from William Clinton Baddeley of Victoria, whom she married here in 1931.

Ivah Laverne Read, RR2, Victoria, from Frederick Richard Read of Victoria. Married here 1939.

Arthur William Pankhurst, 515 Admirals Road, Esquimalt, from Margaret Helen Pankhurst of Campbellton, B.C. Married, Victoria, 1940.

MONTIE ROBERTS

OUR VERY OWN GARDENING GUIDE (What to do when the weather is mild in January edition.)

The current spell of overly-mild mid-winter weather poses a difficult problem for the conscientious gardener. Especially the conscientious gardener who conscientiously wishes to avoid gardening.

At this time of the year, it is only reasonable to expect a blessed blanket of snow to cover the garden, hiding the hose one forgot to put away last spring and the pile of tomato stakes leaning untidily against the compost heap.

Under such circumstances, with the eyesores well hidden, no conscientious gardener could be expected to be so conscientious as to blunder about outside in his overshoes, tidying up.

But this year, with temperatures warm and the only precipitation in the form of rain, a gardener tends to find himself being pushed outdoors by his wife, armed with rake and shovel. (The gardener, not the wife. The wife is usually armed only with a fund of sarcastic remarks.)

What makes it worse is, the conscientious gardener is not only faced with tidying up at this most unseasonal season, all around him he finds things growing.

Buds are budding, grass is grassing, daffodil shoots are shooting, and all nature cries for a shave and haircut. How is the conscientious gardener to avoid lavishing care, attention, and his aching back on these growing things which are growing in mid-winter?

There is little use in screaming at them: "Go back, you stupid fools. It's too early."

I have given this matter a great deal of thought, and believe I have arrived at a solution.

It is based on the method used by fruit growers in sunny California when sunny California isn't sunny, but is frosty. The fruit growers set fire to hundreds of smudge pots, thus creating artificial heat.

For the conscientious gardeners in this balmy mid-winter wonderland, a simple twist is all that's needed. Namely, artificial cold.

My recommendation for this time of the year is, ice packs applied to the appropriate areas of budding buds, grassing grass, and shooting daffodil shoots.

This, I admit, may take a little time and trouble, not to mention a great many ice cubes.

But it's a lot better than gardening, as any conscientious gardener knows.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Four men were fined $25 and $250 court costs each in city court today for failing to file 1956 income tax returns. They were William Dudley, 915 Government; Robert O. Paterson, 544 Simcoe; Karl Egerland, 90 Dallas and Peter Lee, 614 Fisgard. All pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Inga Parsons, 33, of 1528 Elford, was treated for head and leg cuts at Royal Jubilee Hospital Thursday afternoon following a traffic accident at the corner of Fernwood and Pandora. Mrs. Parsons was passenger in a car being driven west on Pandora by Arnold Larsen, 1528 Elford, which was in collision with another car driven south on Fernwood by Nick Lum, 34 Helmcken.

A canvas bag containing $25 in cash was stolen from the office of Victoria City Service, 759 Cormorant, overnight, city police said today. Entrance was gained by smash-in glass on the office door to release the catch.

Thieves also broke into Stewart and Hudson Ltd., 405 Gorge, overnight. A brace and bit was used to break the padlock on the south door. Nothing was missing, police said.

Arthur Hugh Murphy, 5225 Patricia Bay, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty in Saanich police court Thursday of driving while impaired.

He was remanded to next Thursday for a probation report and consideration of driver's licence suspension.

Plans for a provincial PTA convention here in April will be discussed at a meeting of Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council in North Ward School tonight at 8.

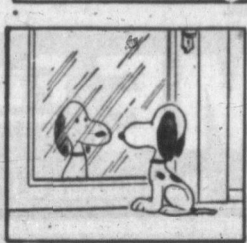

Victoria alderman G. L. Edgewood was returned to office Thursday as chairman of Greater Victoria Centennial Committee. Vice-chairman are Esquimalt councillor G. K. Sammon, Bart Carson and Saanich councillor C. M. Nelles. Oak Bay councillor C. H. G. Mann was re-elected treasurer.

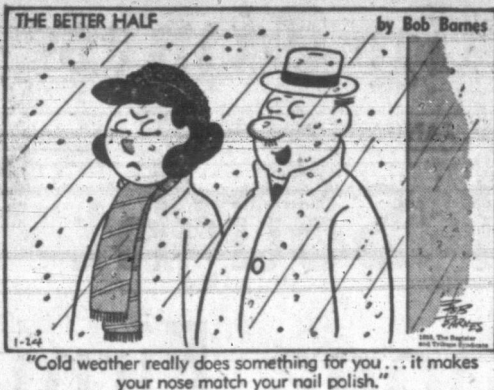

The committee has drawn plans for hanging of green and gold bunting along the exterior of City Hall during summer ceremonies.

Victoria Art Gallery curator Colin Graham was hospitalized Thursday for a stomach condition.

Officials at Royal Jubilee Hospital today reported his condition as "good."

SHOPPING GUIDE

What Tops Menu Today? For Economy, It's Fish!

By PENNY SAVER

To the bottom of the sea, to see what's fishing! I should say cooking, because to eat and enjoy the fish I found today, it would be wise to cook it!

I hope you like sole, because that's what is on the dinner menu for Saturday night.

With fresh sole at 17 cents a pound, dinner will be inexpensive, but you can bet your boots it will be good! How shall we prepare the fish? Well, here's my idea: Using thin fillets or slices of sole, split pieces into halves. Wash the fish and wipe with a clean wet cloth. Place the sole face down on a well-greased broiler pan; sprinkle with salt, pepper and lemon juice; brush with melted butter. Place two inches away from heat. Broil 10 to 15 minutes until nicely browned. When it is done, it will flake easily.

That's all there is to it! Serve with lemon or parsley butter and m-m-m!

There's nothing, simply nothing like a good bowl of hot clam chowder in the middle of the day. Nothing quite so nutritious either! If you and your family like clams, why not splurge a little and prepare a big kettle of homemade clam chowder? With clams at 25 cents a pound, you could make a huge pot of chowder that would feed the hungriest of families!

Phone me and find out where you can buy these fresh delicious clams... now!

Smoked salted haddock is a special this weekend, with a low price tag of 38 cents a pound. Here's a scrumptious meal fit for a king... and easy to prepare! It's baked finnan haddock. Cut one and a half pounds of haddock into serving pieces and place in a greased baking dish. Add one and a half cups of milk and three tablespoons of butter; sprinkle with a quarter teaspoon of paprika. Bake in a moderate oven at 350 degrees for about 25 minutes.

There you have a meal for six people, costing little more than 60 cents!

Here I am changing the subject again! You would, too, if you knew about the latest decrease in egg prices. At one shop, I found that the wise shopper could buy a dozen large size eggs for 50 cents! Then in another there were eggs sell-

Donate Milk For Children

The regular meeting of the Dr. O. M. Jones Chapter, IODE, was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Ellis, 1456 Beach Drive recently. Mrs. J. C. McDonald presided.

A letter of thanks was received from Miss Janet Prentiss, nursing supervisor, for the $150 to be used for the purchase of milk for undernourished children.

A kind donation for the Milk Fund was received from Mrs. O. M. Jones. An interesting report of the Dr. A. M. Jones Chapter, 6th annual meeting, held in February 1925, was read. The late Mrs. Ivel being in the chair at that time.

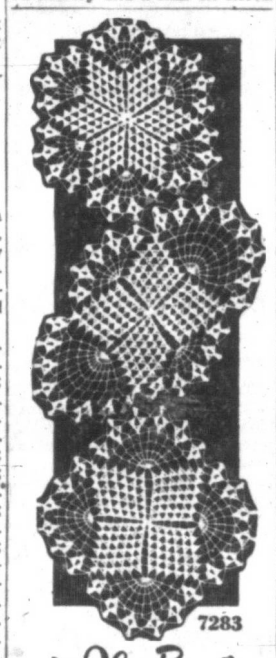

Mrs. H. O'Reilly placed flowers in the DVA hospital. Mrs. C. Riach read the provincial report on Citizenship and Immigration. Tentative arrangements were discussed as to the chapter's Easter Bonnet tea.

Mrs. L. Duncan was nominated as convener of the nominating committee, assisted by Mrs. C. Riach and Mrs. Hitchman.

The 40th annual luncheon of the Dr. O. M. Jones Chapter, held in the Blue Room, Tuesday, Feb. 11, at 12.30 p.m.

CAC Meeting

Mrs. H. S. Clark will speak on textiles at a meeting of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Monday, at 2 p.m. in the music room of the Public Library. Following her talk there will be a panel discussion on hoisery and a film on shoes.

TRAINING FOR PILOT

Although she is only 19 and weighs 117 pounds, Hazel Brooks of Montreal is close to becoming one of Canada's youngest women commercial pilots. Unless bad weather or unusual circumstances interfere she will receive her rating in March. She became interested in aircraft through a brother who built models. At 18 she joined the Montreal Flying Club and got her private pilot rating. The club's chief instructor calls her "an exceptional pilot... just a natural, instinctively good pilot." (CP Photo.)

Colfax Rebekah Lodge Installed New Officers

Mrs. Helen Loat was recently installed noble grand of Colfax Rebekah Lodge, No. 1, by Mrs. Mildred Mackenzie, district deputy president.

Those assisting at the ceremony were Mrs. Nettie O'Neil, Mrs. Margaret Gower, Mrs. Marie Penman, Mrs. May Taylor, Mrs. Lottie Smooty, Mrs. Mary Combe, Mrs. Edith Holyoak, Mrs. Eleanor Roberts and Mrs. Francis Porter.

Other elected officers are: Vice-grand, Mrs. Dorothy Brandon; recording secretary, Mrs. Elsie Taylor; financial secretary, Mrs. Myrtle Silver; treasurer, Mrs. Ada Wilson.

ROLE FOR 11-YEAR-OLD IN BRIDAL PARTY

When my nephew is married, the bride would like my 11-year-old son as a partner for the flower girl, age 5. Although small for his age, do you think he is too old to be a ring bearer, or would he be a junior usher, and, if so, what would his duties be? Could he march out of the church with the Louise Davis little girl?

LOUISE DAVIS ANSWERS:

It seems to me that your boy is at an in-between age when he is too old to be a ring bearer and too young for a junior usher. It would be superfluous to have him in the bridal party just as a partner for the flower girl. If the bride still insists that he take part, you might as well go along with it.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Two weeks ago I published my 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon in order to help my feminine readers lose extra pounds and improve any other defects in beauty they may have. They can do wonders on this eight-week plan.

This week I have been bringing help to the men who read this column. Since thousands of them are beginning my 12-day Tubby Hubby Reducing Diet, I will devote my Friday question box to them today.

Q—"Should a man cut his daily calorie intake as low as his wife does? My wife is following your 8-Week Self-Improvement Marathon and keeps her intake to a thousand to 1,200 calories a day. Is this too low for me?"

A—Yes! Due to man's greater stature he requires more food than women even when he is reducing. My Tubby Hubby Diet gives you around 1,600 calories a day. If you wish to count your calories, hold it to that or a bit more.

Q—"My wife is following your reducing diet and I wish to lose also but we can't have separate menus. What do we do about that?"

A—It is no problem at all. Count your calories separately but the menus can be the same. You can take larger helpings. For instance, while your wife eats one egg, you are allowed two. She has one piece of toast, you have two. She has one slice of meat, you two, and so forth.

Q—"I am a middle-aged man in good health. I know that I have neglected myself. I am going to lose some weight. Is it safe for me to begin sports at my age?"

A—There are certain sports which can be enjoyed at any age. Two of the best are golf and swimming. Of course walking is fine exercise for any age. Tennis and many other sports are considered too strenuous to start after early youth. However, individuals differ greatly in their capacity for exercise. It is essential to have a physical check-up and follow your doctor's advice in this matter. Many men make the mistake of leading sedentary lives for years and then dashing out and overdoing on the golf course. This is bad for health and even dangerous. Your doctor will tell you how much to begin with.

If any of the men who read this column would like to lose from seven to 12 pounds in 12 days' time (or any of their wives would like to have them do so), send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my Tubby Hubby Diet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Fifth Set of Twins Born

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Mrs. Walter Dapp, 34, today gave birth to her fifth set of twins.

In addition to the twins she has had four other children by single births. Two children, of different twin sets, have died, leaving her now with 12 children, the oldest 13 years old. Four of the children, including one set of twins, were of a former marriage.

Man Found Dead After Siege

WINNIPEG (CP)—A 39-year-old railway man who armed himself with a rifle and defied police to enter his home was found shot to death today when police entered the building after a tear-gas bombardment.

The man, George Rush, was found slumped in the bathroom when Police Chief Robert Taft, wearing a respirator, broke down a barricaded kitchen door to enter the dwelling.

Coldwell Recovering From Flu

OTTAWA (CP)—GCF Leader Coldwell is recovering satisfactorily from an attack of influenza but is not expected to return to the Commons until next week, party colleagues said today. He came down with the flu Monday night after an active day in the Commons.

Hostage Hoax Aids Bandit

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A bandit robbed a bank of about $1,500 today but police said his claim that he held a bank employee's child hostage proved to be untrue.

Police at first feared the bandit held captive Mrs. Glena Wignall, wife of the cashier of the Union Bank and Trust Company, and her two children.

Longden to Ride at Santa Anita

ARCADIA, Calif. (UP)—Johnny Longden, winner of more races than any jockey in the history of the sport, resumes riding Saturday at Santa Anita after a layoff of six months resulting from a broken leg. He is scheduled to ride one mount on the Saturday program, Blue Decade in the third race.

ONE VACCINE AGAINST FLU, POLIO POSSIBLE

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Two Tulane University doctors said today their research shows it is possible to make a single vaccine giving protection against colds, flu and polio.

Dr. William J. Mogabgab and Dr. William Pelon made the announcement at a meeting of the southern section of the American Federation for Clinical Research.

The doctors said they isolated a new virus which causes colds. They call it the "2060" virus.

30 Families Flee
Up-Island Floods

Flood waters that struck at least six Up-Island communities, and forced the evacuation of 30 families at Alberni, subsided today with the easing of drenching rains of Wednesday night and Thursday.

Roads were flooded in the vicinity of Duncan and Westholme, the Cat Stream at Nanaimo sent flood waters through gardens, and three families were isolated for a few hours at Parksville, when Englishman River overflowed its banks.

But Alberni was the hardest hit of all.

Rain that fell "in sheets" Wednesday night and continued unabated Thursday was blamed for floods on Rogers Creek, that washed out the Gertrude Street bridge, and rampaging Kitsukis Creek that forced 30 families in the Margaret Street area to leave their homes.

Also evacuated were 36 trailers in a trailer camp that were hurriedly towed to safety as flood waters rose.

City authorities said streets now are dry, and that the Margaret Street bridge, awash Thursday, is open. Two water lines washed out by the floods are being repaired today.

At the height of the flood RCMP had to evacuate members of one family who had three inches of water over the floors of their home, and attempts were made to open blocked culverts with dynamite.

Cars were stalled, and one man in the stricken area was seen in his yard, standing in water up to his knees, and building a raft.

Neighboring Port Alberni suffered mostly from flooded basements that kept city workers busy with pumps. Nanaimo also suffered from flooded basements and overflowing drains, mainly in the Harewood and Brechin areas.

Sandbags, Ditches Divert Water

Surface water aggravated the subsidence of Pioneer Square where old mine workings are believed to have collapsed. Sandbags and hurriedly dug ditches diverted water away from the depression, where 40 feet of curb and sidewalk collapsed.

Water gushing into Commercial Street as rushing waters in a drain lifted a manhole cover.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)—G. Mitchell, president of Sylva Electronic Products, said today that his company's new B-38 Hustler is one of the most spectacular applications of electronics in defence, Don Mitchell told reporters.

In essence the shield system generates an electric-magnetic field around the aircraft that fouls up, disrupts and jams the guiding systems of approaching missiles.

Heavy Rains
Claim Life
Stop Travel

VANCOUVER (CP)—Many areas of southwestern B.C. were under water today following a deluge Thursday that in at least one area set a record for a January day.

The downpour was blamed for one death, rockslides that blocked sections of a highway and washed out part of a railway line, and traffic snarls.

Bradley Matthews, 6, was drowned when he fell into the swollen Eagle Creek in Burnaby, near here. He was swept more than a quarter of a mile downstream.

The rainfall at Vancouver's International Airport in the 24-hour period ended 10 p.m. Thursday was 2.56 inches, heaviest on record for January. The previous mark was 1.38 inches Jan. 6, 1946, the weather office said.

A section of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway track 27 miles north of Vancouver was washed out. Passengers were transported from Squamish to North Vancouver by boat.

A company spokesman said it was hoped to have the track repaired today.

WIRE BRIEFS

France in Race

PARIS (AP)—Roger Baifras, director of France's research centre on thermonuclear fusion, said today temperatures of "about 1,000,000 degrees centigrade" have been reached in the laboratory of Fontenay-aux-Roses near Paris. "Experiments are going on at a fast pace and there is no doubt that France is in a good position in the race for thermonuclear energy," Baifras said.

Mothers Lose Appeal

PEIPING (Reuters)—Premier Chou En-lai notified three American mothers today that he could not consider their appeal for release of their sons from prison terms for espionage.

Farm Bill Approved

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's farm price stabilization bill today was given approval in principle by the Commons by a vote of 110 to 37. Opposing the bill were the CCF and Social Credit groups and two Liberal members, Walter Tucker, Rosthern, Sask., and Louis Denis, St. Boniface, Man.

First Step to H-Power
Taken by Britain, U.S.

(From Times News Dispatches)

Reports claiming "fruitful and promising results" in experiments aimed at harnessing H-bomb reaction to produce industrial electric power were released simultaneously today by the British and U.S. governments.

Both stated flatly, however, that the day of unlimited thermonuclear power — if it ever comes — is "many years" distant and made it clear that the hundreds of millions invested in atomic power on both sides of the Atlantic is not in any jeopardy.

A statement from Britain's Atomic Energy Authority confirmed what has been an open secret for months past—that physicists at the Harwell atomic research establishment believe they have been able to make atoms join together and release free energy in a controlled laboratory experiment.

This is the kind of energy process that takes place in the sun and has kept it hot for millions of years. It is also the energy released instantaneously by an H-bomb.

The Harwell team includes Dr. P. C. Thonemann, an Australian, and Dr. W. B. Thompson, a Canadian from Vancouver and Toronto. Working with a strange, doughnut-shaped machine called Zeta—short for zero-energy thermonuclear assembly—they have produced temperatures as high as 5,000,000 degrees centigrade (9,000,000 degrees Fahrenheit).

The Atomic Energy Authority's report said these temperatures are higher than the measured surface temperatures of any star.

Though—as the report pointed out—it will be many years before the new power can be applied to practical use, scientists view the Harwell achievement as something as big—if not bigger—than the Russian Sputnik triumph.

The objective in both the American and British work is to get hydrogen atoms to "fuse," or join in sufficient quantities so that sufficient energy is released to generate power.

The process is the opposite of atomic energy released in the fission process in which atoms are split.

If the hydrogen process could be perfected, there would be enough hydrogen in sea water to supply mankind's power requirements for millions of years.

But the problems to be surmounted are twofold: 1. Generating temperatures of 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 degrees for a process that would involve the least accessible kind of hydrogen called "tritium" or a temperature of about 400,000,000 degrees for a more accessible kind called "deuterium." Both are heavy forms of hydrogen not used.

2. "Containing" the hydrogen in gaseous form in a vessel in such a way that the highly heated material would not melt the vessel. Also, the temperature would have to be sustained long enough in the initial stages to start a self-sustaining chain reaction.

The progress reported by both countries concerned both these points, but the temperatures attained still are far from the objective, and so is the period of "containment."

Both said—as they have previously—that their experiments suggest that they have actually produced fusion reactions, even though for a limited time and at temperatures lower than would be needed on a practical scale.

And both indicated that if this were so, it would be an opening second session of 25th Legislature. View through main doors shows packed assembly floor, and equally full Speaker's gallery above. Six to eight-week session is expected.

Liberal Leader
Outlines Stand
In Vancouver

By JOHN MIKA, Times Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Opposition leader Lester B. Pearson dropped a hint today that he may have another motion of non-confidence up his sleeve next week and stated that the Liberals are ready for an election at "any time."

At a Vancouver airport press conference, he said, "if the government goes back into supply Monday or Tuesday, there will be another want of confidence motion if the occasion warrants."

"There also could be a want of confidence motion put when they bring down the rest of their legislation."

Mr. Pearson said he was aware that there was much criticism of his want of confidence amendment last Monday, because it obviously was not designed to force an election.

"I'm sure a lot of people would have been glad to see the excitement of the convention carried through to a motion defeating the government."

WOULD HELP TORIES

"But that would have given the government exactly what they wanted, an escape from the unemployment and trade problems, and an escape from bringing down further legislation, and an escape from the responsibility of bringing on an election."

The new Liberal standard bearer said he was not "in a position the first day I took over to move an amendment which would have resulted in dissolution. So I moved one that could get the solid support of our party, based on our new platform."

"However, that doesn't necessarily mean the tactics of the first day will be repeated."

Mr. Pearson is in Vancouver to address the Vancouver Board of Trade tonight and the annual provincial Liberal convention Saturday.

The Liberal leader said the government had ridiculed his party for "being afraid of the ballot box."

"Well, if they want ballot boxes, they can have dissolution at any time they want. The Liberal party is ready for an election at any time."

Mr. Pearson said he personally would not be in the House of Commons after the election.

Fusion Source Of Vast Energy

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE (AP Science Reporter)

Taming the H-bomb could give all nations unlimited power or energy for millions of years. Today's announcement of British progress on the problem at Harwell makes it plain that commercial use is still years away. But the fact that scientists have unlocked some of the secrets of vast importance to the world of the future. Here's why:

We are rapidly using up the coal and oil we burn to warm our homes, run our autos and produce electrical energy. This burning only involves a chemical change. Oxygen combines with carbon and hydrogen in the coal, oil or gasoline. You get hot gases, to produce heat and power. Atoms are not destroyed as atoms—they change from solid to gaseous compounds while giving up chemical energy. But the coal and oil are gone as coal and oil.

Really inexhaustible energy is locked up within the hearts or nuclei of atoms and the forces that hold them together. Atom hearts contain the basic material or mass of everything, living or lifeless.

Some of this atomic mass can be transformed into energy. This is what happens in A-bombs or atomic power plants. The nucleus of an atom of uranium-235 or certain other

Ike Prods Russians
For Summit Reaction

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has prodded Russia on President Eisenhower's plan for lower-level talks as a possible prelude to a summit conference.

The state department said today Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in Moscow called on Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko Thursday to inquire about Soviet reaction to Eisenhower's ideas.

OTTAWA BOOSTS SHARE
IN B.C. ROAD BUILDING

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has agreed to contribute an additional $1,500,000 toward construction of the 250-mile Stewart-Cassiar road in north-central British Columbia, it was learned today. Under a revised agreement with the B.C. government the road also will be built over a period of five instead of four years.

NORMAN CRIBBENS

IN THE
LEGISLATURE

The visitor from Russia might notice little difference between the opening of the mother Parliaments in Westminster and the opening of the B.C. Legislature in Victoria.

The colorful ritual is the same except that in Westminster the speech from the Throne is read by a radiant young Queen and in Victoria by Her Majesty's representative the Lieutenant-Governor.

But the Russian visitor to Victoria might be puzzled to hear the staid ceremonies interrupted by strange mutterings about a courthouse.

"Kaut-aus, vat is a kaut-aus?" he might ask.

And then someone would have to explain that the unimpeachable Liberal members of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition—George Gregory and Archie Gibbs—felt so strongly about the need for a new home for Victoria's lawyers and judges that they had to inject it into the ceremonies.

They did so when Public Works Minister W. N. Chant asked leave to present his departmental report for the year, and again when Premier Bennett, as finance minister, begged permission to present his.

"The courthouse—what about the courthouse?" asked Mr. Gregory in politely modulated tones.

"Yes, what about the courthouse?" murmured Mr. Gibbs—with an offstage obligato by CCF Leader Robert Strachan.

Neither Mr. Chant nor the premier would allow them-

the district are built on silt and escaped unscathed.

Campbell River, Courtenay, Parksville, and Tofino reported heavy rains, but Estevan Point took Island honors with a recorded 6.44 inches of rain in 48 hours.

Westholme reported flood waters at the corner of Island Highway and Crofton Road for a few hours, but gave credit for removal of gravel from Chemainus River by construction crews early this year for keeping the water level down. It did not rise above 10 inches, and in previous years two feet of water has not been uncommon.

Victoria escaped from the brunt of the storm that wreaked havoc up-Island, and will have a few showers tonight and cloudy periods with partial clearing Saturday.

Evidence of the mild weather was given in temperature reports that showed Victoria, with a maximum temperature of 49 degrees Thursday, was the warmest city in Canada.

Calgary and Vancouver were next with 47 degrees, and Victoria's minimum temperature of 46 degrees proved to be higher than the maximums for all the rest of the country.

Highways department crews working on a rock slide that blocked the Parksville-Alberni Highway Thursday at 3 a.m. at Angel Rock, beside Cameron Lake, had two-way traffic restored by late afternoon.

important step in the quest. But both said—as they also have said previously—that they are still not sure that this is the case, and that further experiments will be needed to establish this.

The reports stressed that in the fusion field they have not reached a point comparable to the first atomic fission reaction achieved on Dec. 2, 1942, which launched the atomic bomb.

Russia for some years has been working along the same lines as British physicists to achieve controlled thermonuclear reaction, but has not announced any success beyond the achievement of a temperature of 1,000,000 degrees centigrade.

The U.S. has been exchanging information with Britain on developments.

There has been widespread criticism in London over reports that the U.S. left behind by Russia on Sputniks, persuaded Britain to delay announcing the Harwell success until American scientists could catch up. But Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has denied this.

In Washington, Strauss said today that the reports now released by the two countries show that "certain comparative observations which have been published in recent weeks about British and U.S. progress in this field . . . have been not only misleading but lacking in any foundation of fact."

Today's scientific reports actually showed that each country had achieved a certain result which the other had not.

The U.S. reported achievement of temperatures higher than those reported by British scientists—6,000,000 degrees centigrade against 5,000,000.

Britain, on the other hand, reported sustaining the temperatures for a longer period of time—for periods of thousands of a second as compared with millionths of a second reported by the Americans.

The higher American temperatures were achieved in particular experiments that began just last month, whereas the British scientists apparently achieved theirs several months before. Neither country, however, alluded to any significance in such differences in results or time when achieved.

Temperatures of at least 100,000,000 degrees—sustained for perhaps several seconds—would be required to obtain useful power from the hydrogen, or fusion, reaction.

American officials, in today's report, also said that an analysis of the British results indicated that in the particular apparatus used by Britain, an "unknown process" must be in operation.

BUSH PILOT RESCUED
AFTER WEEK'S ORDEAL

WINNIPEG (CP)—A bush pilot who spent a week stranded on a frozen northern Manitoba lake in 20-below-zero weather, Thursday was rescued unharmfully by the crew of an RCAF search plane.

James Leslie Dougans, 42, of Regina, landed on the lake Jan. 16 when his small bush plane ran afoul of bad flying weather and engine trouble. He was on a 95-mile flight from Utik Lake, 325 miles north of here, to Wabowden, Man., carrying a cargo of frozen lake trout. The fish was his main diet during the week.

heavy atoms is split or fissioned into two or more pieces. But all these pieces together aren't as heavy as the original single nucleus.

Some of the matter was changed into useful energy. The world hasn't got inexhaustible supplies of the heavy atoms that will split this way. One estimate is that all such reserves would give us energy equal to 10 to 100 times the amount of all the world's remaining coal.

A-ASHES ARE MENACE

That's a lot, but with population increasing and more and more people using and wanting electricity and power, we could run out of atomic power in time. And the atomic splitting creates highly dangerous radioactive wastes which are becoming more and more troublesome to dump anywhere safely.

The H-bomb or fusion reaction offers a way out.

It actually fuses or combines lightweight atoms to create heavier ones. Two atoms of double-weight hydrogen become one atom of helium, for example. The heart of this helium atom weighs less than the two original hydrogen atoms. Some of the original mass turned into energy.

It takes tremendous heat and pressure to produce the fusion.

Our sun "burns" on this principle, and will keep going for billions of years this way. H-bombs are set off by the heat and pressure from an A-bomb explosion used as a trigger.

SOLVING PROBLEM

The peacetime problem is to get enormous temperatures and materials and methods to keep H-fusion going at a controlled rate and draw off useful heat from it. This is what scientists hope to solve. They are making some progress.

The H-fusion produces no radioactive wastes. The radioactivity from H-bombs mainly comes from the A-bomb trigger, or from materials, such as a uranium jacket, used to give it more explosive force.

Controlled H-fusion means we could use double-weight hydrogen, called deuterium, as our principal fuel. "The world's oceans contain enough to power civilizations for millions or even billions of years."

And deuterium is not costly to get from the seas. Cost has been estimated as making deuterium less than 1 per cent as expensive as coal as a fuel.

CROWDS GETTING SMALLER

Has Rating Troubles

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

"What's going on here?" asked a man outside the B.C. legislature Thursday afternoon as the killed Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) swung into view.

"Oh, just the opening of parliament," said another man in a tired voice. "They're waiting for the lieutenant-governor to arrive."

This seemed characteristic of a certain apathy towards the opening of the House. The crowds were much smaller this year and no one looked the least bit excited by the thunder of the cannons or the file body of marching men.

DRIFTED AWAY

Many drifted off during the hour-long wait for the reappearance of Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross after opening the House.

Inside, the ceremonies were brightened by the introduction of new members William Spear (SC-Cariboo), Cedric Cox (CCF-Burnaby) and Gordon Gibson (SC-Delta).

There was a silent standing tribute to the late Ralph Chetwynd, former minister of agriculture who died soon after the close of the last session.

Otherwise the opening ceremonies went strictly according to the rules laid down for the opening of legislatures all over the British Commonwealth.

100,000 HORSEPOWER

New Power Plant Ready by Summer

Georgia Generating Station of the B.C. Power Commission at Bare Point, opposite Chemainus, likely will be in operation by summer of this year, according to power commission officials.

Boasting four oil-fired gas turbines driving generators that will develop a total of 100,000 horsepower, it will be the largest plant of its type in the world when completed. Cost will be over $13,500,000.

First of the four units is "operational," and the second is completed and undergoing tests by manufacturers. Third and fourth turbine generators will be in place shortly.

The plant will be used to augment the commission's hydro system on Vancouver Island at times of peak load. It is expected that the plant can start producing power 10 minutes after notification, and reach full production in less than 20 minutes.

Bunker C oil fuel delivered by tankers is stored at the site, then given extensive treatment for removal of impurities before going through high-speed turbines. Treated fuel, ready for instant use, is stored in large tanks close to the plant.

Jobless Reduced By Mill Openings

DUNCAN—The number of registered unemployed at the Duncan office of the National Employment Service rose sharply above the December total, and at mid-January the number was 2,169.

However, this figure was lowered to 1,913 with the reopening after seasonal closures of sawmills of Western Forest Industries at Honeycomb Bay and Hillcrest Lumber Co. at Mesachie Lake.

The B.C. Cement Co. plant reopened Jan. 20 and the employment situation now is static, according to R. H. Robinson, manager of the Duncan-NES office.

On the other hand, there is no indication of an early return of woods workers as high inventories and poor market conditions prevail.

UNCERTAIN
The situation in the lumbering industry remains uncertain, where 90 men of the second shift of the WFI bandmill at Honeycomb Bay have been laid off indefinitely. Other large operators have made some small cutbacks in crews, but production remains constant.

Further large layoffs by subcontractors at the pulp mill at Crofton were partially offset by the hiring of 110 permanent employees from this area out of a total staff of 285. The BCFP mill is currently undergoing test runs.

Mild weather has encouraged a number of smaller construction starts. Virtually no demand has existed for labor and the situation is similar to that of the preceding week.

Because of the number of highly skilled unplaced applicants, considerable success has been achieved in filling vacancies in other areas through NES clearance procedures.

B.C. SCIENTIST AMONG TAMERS OF H-BOMB

He is Dr. William Bell Thompson of Vancouver and Toronto.

Born in Belfast, his family emigrated to Canada when he was an infant. He studied at the universities of British Columbia and Toronto, and then went to the Canadian atomic research establishment at Chalk River, Ont.

Now 35, the six-foot-three mathematician was only 28 when he joined Britain's Harwell team working on thermonuclear reactions.

Island Firemen Win Many Honors

Vancouver Island fire departments won several honors in the Canadian defence department section of the 1957 international fire prevention contest sponsored by the National Fire Protection Association.

In Royal Canadian Navy rankings Patricia Bay Airport crew won second for installations of less than 1,500 men, and Rocky Point Magazine received honorable mention.

Belmont Park married quarters at Colwood was first in the medium class, with from 1,500 to 3,000 personnel, and the RCN barracks at Esquimalt won honorable mention.

First place for installations of more than 3,500 personnel went to HMC Dockyard.

ally had no particular preference between an immediate election or one in June or this fall.

Had his amendment won, relief of unemployment conditions would have been the target of Liberal legislation. Also "immediate consideration of the British free trade proposal would have been given which is not being done now."

Calling the British plan the "most exciting trade proposal we've had in recent years," Mr. Pearson scored the Conservatives for their intention to divert 15% of Canada's U.S. trade to Great Britain.
